Our business, as well as our pleasure, is to cut up meats and serve them so they will satisfy your eye and can be cooked to the best advantage. There's a whole lot in the quality of the meat itself, of course; but good meat can be spoiled by slipshod cutting up. There's science in our methods.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Many Communications from Mayor—Judge Kennedy Appointed a Library Trustee.

Long and Pointless Debate Regarding Illegal Liquor Selling By Druggists.

President Weed was in the chair at the meeting of the aldermen on Monday evening, and only Aldermen Carter, F. A. Day and Hunt were absent.

Hearings were held on taking land for sewers in River avenue and Elliot Place and on laying a concrete sidewalk on Lowell avenue under the betterment act. No one appeared and orders taking the land and for construction of the sewers and of the sidewalk were subsequently adopted.

FROM THE MAYOR.

A communication from the mayor relative to passage of ordinance authorizing the taking of five million gallons daily from the Charles river for water purposes was laid on the table.

Communications from the mayor requesting $725 additional for salaries and conveyance of pupils in the school department and recommending $10,000 in serial notes for purchase of school equipment were referred to the Finance Committee.

A communication relative to removal of certain trees in Newton Centre accompanied by an exhaustive report of a commission of citizens appointed by the mayor to consider the matter, was received and later in the evening an order assigning a hearing on Nov. 25 on the subject was adopted.

A communication requesting investigation by the board of the conviction of Joseph A. Letourneau, a drug clerk employed by P. J. E. Lacroix of Nonantum, for the illegal sale of liquor was received and a motion to table the matter by Alderman Hubbard was defeated.

Alderman Hubbard stated that there was no charge against the druggist himself and under their license they have a perfect right to make as many sales of liquor as they deem for legitimate purposes. The alderman admitted that the druggists might be exceeding their rights under their license but they should be proven guilty before it could be taken from them. A druggist can sell for medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes and he must satisfy himself that the demand is within these lines. The Board of Pharmacy is endeavoring to check the illegal sale of liquor by druggists, but proof is needed. The alderman did not believe that the druggist could be held responsible for the acts of his clerk.

Alderman H. B. Day said the License Committee had been giving the matter of liquor sales by druggists considerable attention, and while the law made quite a distinction between a 6th and a 4th class license, he believed that the druggists today were doing a 4th class business. It was folly to claim that Newton was a no license city with such a large 4th class liquor business going on.

Alderman Hubbard believed that it was the duty of the executive to investigate and make definite charges if druggists are doing an illegal business, and the proof should be positive.

Alderman Mellen called attention to the mayor's communication stating that the mayor had done just as Alderman Hubbard wished. He had stated the facts and wished the board to investigate.

The matter was then referred to the Committee on Licenses and later a hearing was ordered upon the matter of revoking the Lacroix license before the committee on Nov. 19 at 8 P. M.

The rules were then suspended and the report of the Rules Committee that the ordinance amending the inspection of wires ordinance was correctly enrolled was received and the ordinance was then passed to be ordained.

The mayor's appointment of Judge John C. Kennedy to be a trustee of the Newton Free Library, vice Julius L. Clarke resigning, was confirmed after the legal residence of the judge had been ascertained.

A communication from the School Committee relative to a vacancy caused by the resignation of George C. Travis of Ward 7 was received. Communications from the same committee relative to additional appropriations of $725 for salaries and for conveyance of pupils, and requesting transfer of water appropriation to incidentals were referred to the Finance Committee.

The report of the Street Commissioner that Boylston street had been completed under the betterment act at a net cost of $51,361.98 was referred to the Assessors.

Communications from the Chairmen of the Democratic and Republican city committees relative to city caucuses on Nov. 17 and Nov. 18, respectively, were received and the action taken by the City Clerk in preparing for the same was approved.

The communication from the secretary of the Socialist City Committee, Eugene Hough, that the Socialist would hold no city caucuses was received.

Petitions of A. A. Shedd et al for concrete sidewalk on Lake avenue under the betterment act of the Nonantum Worst Co. for a sewer in Chapel street, of J. J. Cranitch et al for lowering of grade of Broadway and of Mary Jordan et al for a fire alarm signal station on Concord street were referred to the Public Works Committee.

The petition of G. F. Stone that the street railway tracks on Woodward street be removed to center of the street and for abatement of street watering tax, of Louis J. Geoffroy to move a building from Park place to Cabot street, and of the Gas Co. for locations on Cherry street, on Newtonville avenue, on Derby street, and on Channing street; of the Telephone Co. for locations on Grove street, Stearns street, and for attachments on Washington street, Ward 2, were referred to the Committee on Public Franchises, hearings being ordered where necessary for Nov. 14 at 7.45 P. M.

Petition of Henry G. Reid for damages on account of injuries to horse and buggy because Cheese Cake Boulevard was not fenced was referred to the Committee on Claims. Walter Chesley was granted 2 wagon licenses and John Farrell a license for an additional pool table.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

These reports were received:

PUBLIC WORKS: (Majority) favorable to lighting clock on Eliot church under conditions, recommending $255.57 for land damages on Windsor road and recommending change of name of Kingsbury street to Kingsbury road.

PUBLIC FRANCHISES, Etc.: Recommending granting attachments to Gas Co. on Centre street, Ward 7, Centre street, Ward 1, and a location on Berkeley street, Ward 3; recommending granting Telephone Co. locations on Madison avenue, Ward 2, (majority) on Central street, Ward 4, and on Walnut street, Ward 5. Recommending granting the American Mica Co. attachments on Washington street, Ward 4.

FINANCE: Recommending transfer of $250 from collectors' fees to miscellaneous expenses; recommending temporary loans of $200,000; and approving $255.57 for land damages on Windsor road.

These reports were adopted: PUBLIC FRANCHISES, Etc.: Recommending granting wagon licenses to W. C. McIntosh, and a Common Victualler license to Ella A. Bodge on Centre street, Ward 7; recommending leave to withdraw on petition of John Cushing for pool table license; recommending leave to withdraw on Telephone location on Bowers street; and recommending no action necessary on petitions of B. F. Lyons relative to closing hours for pool rooms, and on petition of Albert Keefe relative to free transfers on the B. & W. street railway.

FINANCE: Recommending $6 per month for Soldiers Relief to Chas. L. Steele. Orders appropriating $255.57 for land damages on Windsor road; changing name of Kingsbury street to Kingsbury road; granting Gas Co. attachments on Centre street, Ward 1, Centre street, Ward 7, and a location on Berkeley street; granting the Telephone Co. locations on Central street, Ward 4, and Walnut street, Ward 5, granting the American Mica Co. attachments on Washington street, Ward 4, authorizing temporary loans for $200,000, transferring $250 from collectors' fees to miscellaneous expenses and for the city election on Dec. 8 were adopted.

Alderman Johnson opposed the order granting a location for 8 poles on Madison avenue to the Telephone Co. on the ground that it was unfair to saddle poles on this street where the owners objected, simply for the use of residents on Newtonville avenue. There was some debate on the matter by Alderman Dennison and H. B. Day and the order was defeated by a voice vote.

The order for printing the city documents for 1903 was referred to the Finance Committee.

And at 9.05 the board adjourned until Nov. 9 at the usual hour.

Editor of Newton Graphic,

Dear Sir:—

May I, through the columns of the Graphic, call attention to the splendid work which is being promoted by the Massachusetts Association for helping the adult blind.

I have recently listened to a wonderful lecture by their agent, Mr. Charles F. F. Campbell. The lecture was given at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, before the members of the N. E. Women's Press Association and invited guests. It was illustrated by stereopticon and cinematograph views, showing the methods used at the Royal Normal College in London, where Mr. Campbell's father, the famous Dr. Campbell, has carried out his unique theories in regard to the best education for teaching the blind to become useful members of society. Dr. Campbell was once upon a time a resident of Newtonville and some of our old residents still remember his interesting personality.

Mr. Campbell is a delightful speaker, thoroughly in sympathy with the noble work which he so well presents to his hearers. I should like to commend this lecture in behalf of so vital a charity to women's clubs in our city and elsewhere.

THE PICKARD LETTERS

Interesting Notes of Foreign Travel—Edinburgh, the Most Picturesque City in the World—The Castle Charmingly Described.

The castle from its rocky height looked in upon us steadily through our windows and silently beckoned us over and up. So one morning we went to visit the venerable fortress. We were driven around the western base to the southern side of Castle hill, then up the steep ascent to the entrance—the only one to the castle—on the eastern side. Leaving our carriage, we entered upon the Esplanade, 120 yards by 100 in extent, spread out in front of the fortress. This was before 1753 a steep narrow ridge, and was long used for public executions. It is now a fine parade ground. A Highland regiment was on drill when we entered and we stopped by the wall to witness the exercise. We saw and admired the well-nigh perfect machine—beautiful of course in its action.

We entered the castle by a drawbridge over a deep, dry fosse, and through an archway above which is a guardhouse. Farther on and up is the Portcullis Gate over which is the old State Prison, where many illustrious captives have been confined. There's the armory at the bottom of a roadway; ascending a pathway we passed the governor's house, and the Barracks, a lofty pile on the western side of the rock. We came to the citadel the highest platform of the castle, a little farther on by an old arched gateway. On the height in front is an interesting building small and "barr like." It is Queen Margaret's chapel, built by Queen Margaret (the Saxon wife of Malcolm Canmore) who died in 1093. It measures 16½ feet by 10½. In 1853 after long neglect, it was adorned with three small windows of stained glass.

Opposite on the King's Bastion stands "Mons Meg," a famous piece of ordnance said to have been made at Mons in Belgium in 1476. Its birthplace is not known with certainty, nor is there agreement as to the service it has rendered. It burst, whether at siege of Roxburgh about 1460, killing James II; or when firing a salute in 1682, of small importance. It burst, and has not been repaired.

It is not of modern make, being composed of a number of thick iron bars bound by strong hoops of iron; is thirteen feet long, over twenty-four inches in diameter; its bore twenty inches, tapering inward; its weight, five tons. It was once taken to the tower of London, but was restored to Scotland in 1829. The bastion on which it stands commands a view not surpassed in Europe, as it embraces a magnificent range of sea and land. Near "Mons Meg" are the "Half Moon Battery" and the electrical apparatus that discharges the time guns. We passed thence into a quadrangle 100 feet square, within which the buildings on the south and west sides were for centuries the Royal Palace and stronghold of the kings and queens of Scotland. Many sovereigns were born, lived and died here, and many a lawless deed was done here.

On the ground floor in the southeast corner is the room, very small (8 feet in length) in which Queen Mary in 1566 gave birth to James I of England. The Crown room is in the quadrangle.

Having seen the flash and heard the boom of the guns announcing noon, we, satisfied with all we had seen within the walls and with bright mental photographs of the beautiful city and its magnificent surroundings of mound and hill and sea and far-off mountain peaks, retraced our steps down to High street and were driven to our hotel, trooping after us meanwhile and crowding up into our pensive minds thoughts of what that "hoar pile" had witnessed in centuries past.

Next to the castle in interest to strangers generally is the Palace of Holyrood house. The Palace is distinct from the Abbey, and was founded by James IV in 1501, but it was only begun in his reign. In 1528 James V erected the northern towers in which are Queen Mary's apartments. The rest of the existing palace was built by command of Charles II. It is spacious, quadrangular, enclosing a court ninety-four feet square. The grand entrance is in the centre of the principal front which faces east. The sides and back of the quadrangle are three stories high.

The first room visited by us is the Picture Gallery—a fine large apartment. On its walls are hung portraits of a hundred kings of Scotland. "Portraits," indeed! They are all imaginary, and the kings are fictitious, or but reputed kings, a dreary sameness of look and color as uninspiring as naked wall. If such were the kings, they should have been hanged for furnishing their portraits to be hung. There are a few pictures of interest, but few. This fine apartment was once enlivened by Prince Charles Edward, who held his receptions here in 1745.

We went next to Lord Darnley's room in which are some fine portraits, one of Darnley in his youth and his brother. A staircase leads to Queen Mary's apartments, which are on the third floor of the towers built by James V. These for us, as for everyone, had the greatest attraction, for here the loveliest woman of his time, whose life story can scarce be read without tears spent the most eventful years of her unhappy life. The first apartment is the Audience Chamber with paneled and embellished ceilings. Here is the venerated state bed once occupied by Charles I, later by Prince "Charlie" in 1745 and soon after by the Duke of Cumberland, both on his way to Culloden field and on his return. In this room Knox had frequent stormy interviews with Mary. In the next room, the queen's bed chamber, were shown the queen's bed and its decayed hangings. In one corner a narrow door opens into the dressing room hung with tapestry now faded. On the north side a small door opens on the private staircase by which Rizzio's assassin made their way to the royal apartment, and near this door is the entrance to the supper room from which Rizzio, who had clung to the garments of the queen, was dragged through the bed chamber and ante chamber and finally despatched at the head of the staircase. Dark stains said to have been made by his blood issuing from fifty wounds were shown to us. Having seen so much, we left the place with willing feet.

The late Mrs. Cargill.

Mrs. Ann Mills Cargill, who died in Newton Upper Falls Sept. 22, was the widow of William Cargill of Wrentham, and daughter of Elijah and Anna Mills Story. On her maternal side she was also a great, great granddaughter of the first minister of Needham, Rev. Jonathan Townsend. She was born in Dedham, April 27, 1818, but had lived in Needham and Newton the greater part of her life. The funeral was from her late residence on Friday, Sept. 25, and was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Gilbert of the Baptist church of this place and Rev. W. W. Peck, pastor of the First Parish church of Needham, with which she and her ancestors had been connected. The interment was in the Needham cemetery, beside the remains of her husband and son. She left two daughters, Mrs. Adela M. Ellis and Mrs. Eugene Fanning, also a grandson, William H. Fanning, all residing in this place.

A REPLY

Regarding Swedenborg and The Scriptures.

Mrs. Metcalf Criticizes Dr. Goddard's Recent Article.

To the Editor of the Graphic,
Dear Sir:—

Will you kindly allow me to reply through the columns of your paper to the letter from Rev. John Goddard in the issue of Oct. 16, in which he has seen fit to honor "with a passing notice a certain little book of which I am the author."

First, Mr. Goddard says, "Since this production emanates from a resident of Newton and, presumably, has more or less of a local circulation, it seems only just and proper that it should receive a local reply," then goes on to say,

"It seems clear that the writer is not familiar with Swedenborg's writings, but depends upon what others have said about him or quoted from him. She therefore fails to grasp the breadth and depth of his universal thought."

From this statement two inferences may be drawn. Either the reverend gentleman has not carefully read the "pamphlet placed in his hands" or he is guilty of a wilful misrepresentation, for that work contains nothing relating to Swedenborg as a man or to Mrs. Eddy as a woman, neither is there any pretence of an attempt to "grasp the breadth and depth of his universal thought." The sole aim of the writer was to demonstrate that the claim of neither of these individuals is sustained even on its own ground but that its falsity is self-evident. And it is not true that in this demonstration the writer has depended upon what others have said of Swedenborg or have quoted from him.

The references to collateral works are literal quotations in full from lectures and sermons delivered by prominent divines in that organization. The references to their standard works or those of Swedenborg are literal quotations to be found in a dictionary consisting of extracts from those writings. These quotations reveal unqualified contradictions and inconsistencies, even showing that Swedenborg's declarations concerning those works claimed to be his own are open to doubt and question. Notwithstanding this evidence is set aside by Mr. Goddard after the following diverting method. He says,

"In these two facts—the difficulty of conveying spiritual thought in natural language and the necessity of adapting the truth to different forms of mind—the secret of what seems to Mrs. Metcalf Swedenborg's contradictions, as might easily be shown."

"Her charges, then, of a lack of consistency, I will pass by without further remark, and also the parallels which are drawn between Swedenborg's and Mrs. Eddy's claims, however interesting it would be to consider them; and will confine myself to the pamphlet's most serious and erroneous charge, namely, that the followers of Emanuel Swedenborg or rather the believers in his theology, while apparently worshippers of the Lord Jesus Christ are really worshippers of Swedenborg, the man, depending, as they do, upon his interpretation of the Bible's meaning rather than its plain literal meaning and so making his interpretations a substitute for the Bible itself. I will reply as briefly as possible, first by reference to Swedenborg's character as a man; secondly, by reference to his teachings with regard to the duty of approaching the Lord; and thirdly, by his teachings respecting the use to be made of the Scriptures."

Thus three-fourths of the letter purporting to be a reply to this writer's "pamphlet," is devoted to a treatise on Swedenborg, the man, while her questions and arguments are completely ignored. There is one point, however, in "Thirdly," to which she will call the attention of the reader: it is this, "The only outward authority that Swedenborg acknowledges is the written Scripture. All that he has written is to be judged by that and by that in its plain and literal teaching." If this is the truth then there are prominent teachers of the New Church who have "failed to grasp the breadth and depth of his universal thought," as witness an extract to be found in a clipping from the Boston Herald of Jan. 21, 1883.

"The New Jerusalem Messenger does not often discuss subjects outside its church curriculum, but under the heading 'The Great Question in today's Religious Thought,' there is a vigorous article which must not be overlooked. * * * The editor says, 'Considered in its letter, the Bible, so far as it claims to be a divine book meets with the protest of man's intelligence and rationality. * * * The Bible cannot continue to be received by the enlightened thinkers of today as the word of the Lord except as it can be shown to contain the thoughts of the Lord.' * * * The doctrine that within the literal Word are contained divine truths * * * can alone satisfy the requirements now exacted of any doctrine teaching the holiness of the sacred Scripture."

And the author of a work entitled "Swedenborg and the New Church" says, "The shell of the letter may, as it were, be perforated and the living spirit of eternal wisdom revealed." Again from the same, "The New Church as an outward organization may be defined as a body which believes in a definite spiritual sense within the letter of the Bible and in a system of doctrine which that higher sense discloses, Emanuel Swedenborg being its exponent and interpreter." We are taught by this that the literal expressions of the Bible are as the shell of the nut. The spirit of eternal wisdom is not in those words but within them, even as the meat of the nut is not in the shell, but within it, else the word "perforated" is without meaning. And this "spirit of eternal wisdom" is the definite spiritual sense within the letter; and it is by this that the Bible is "shown to contain the thoughts of the Lord," thus meeting a requirement impossible to be met by any literal interpretation, according to the editor above quoted; hence we are taught that the works of Swedenborg are the authority for believing the Bible to be a divine book, while Mr. Goddard says, "the only outward authority that Swedenborg acknowledges is the written Scripture," and the whole amounts to this, Swedenborg's writings are the endorsement of the Bible's claim to being a divine book, while the Bible is the endorsement of Swedenborg's endorsement.

Regarding the "most serious and erroneous charge" imputed to this writer, she wishes to say that the nearest approach to the truth of such accusation will be found in the two following extracts from her work.

(Ex. 1.) Even admit that Swedenborg's works are reverently regarded only as that which testifies to the truth of the claim of Scripture to a divine origin; is he not, in such case regarded as the Lord's vicegerent? Are not the Scriptures trusted in on his authority, not on their own? and is not this to place his authority above that of the Bible? Or, again, let us charitably suppose the New Church honestly believes that trusting in the definite spiritual is trusting in the Bible because the letter contains that spiritual as the full corn in the ear; then, on this ground—this subtle connection—the implicit belief in the letter of the Bible should be acknowledged to be belief in that inner sense; and since this is not conceded, the New Church cannot complain if the faithful do not accept its reverence as genuine and meet its conflicting declarations with the demand if the Lord be God, then follow him; but if Swedenborg, then follow him. A compound is impossible; even your expounding of divine mysteries seems nothing more than making of Holy Writ a mere packhorse for the conveyance of Swedenborg's words into the religious world.

(Ex. 2.) With the Swedenborgian system all teachings showing the way of life are seemingly in the name of the Lord, but are adulterated with Swedenborgian heaven—are really in the name of Emanuel, the Swede, instead of Emmanuel, the Nazarene.

There are other points in Mr. Goddard's letter which the writer would like to consider, but space will not permit.

Yours very truly,

Ellen J. (Foss) Metcalf.

THE NEWTON BLUE BOOK.

The Newton Blue Book for 1904 will soon be issued. It will be handsomely bound in blue and gold and an ornament to any library as well as being invaluable as a means of reference.

It will be divided in the different sections of the Newtons, besides giving the residents according to their location by streets, there will be an alphabetical list of them. This, of course, greatly facilitates the placing of names and location. It will contain the churches, clubs and societies, fire alarm, halls, rates of postage, institutions, secret and benevolent societies, etc.

It will contain diagrams of all the Boston theatres and a map of Newton. Subscription price is $1.00; after publication the price will be $1.50. The last issue was so favorably received, the success of this one is assured. The Blue Book will make its appearance once every two years. E. A. Jones, Publisher, North Cambridge.

AUBURNDALE ART LEAGUE.

The Auburndale Art League has its first lecture for the general public on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10, at 7.45 o'clock in the hall of the new C. C. Burr school. The league has secured the services of Mr. Henry Turner Bailey, late supervisor of art in the public schools of Massachusetts, who will lecture on "The Central Shrine," illustrated by stereopticon.

All Mr. Bailey's former hearers know that his lectures are thoroughly interesting and educational and to those who have never heard him a rare treat is promised.

The primal object of the Art League is the promotion of art in the public schools of Auburndale and all its superfluous funds will be used in that direction.

The League is a new organization and needs encouragement; it is therefore hoped that the general public will show its appreciation of the proposed work of the League by a large attendance at this lecture, further notice of which will be found in another column.

One of the most popular moves made by the management of the Boston & Albany is an extension of the uses of the 25-ride suburban tickets. Under the new arrangement a ticket on the Highland branch is good to any point on the main line taking the same rate, that is, the commutation rate to Newton on the main line is $2.19 and to Chestnut Hill on the branch the same, which gives the holder the privilege to go to either station on the same ticket.

Another point worth considering is that a ticket good to Longwood or Brookline on the branch is good to Cottage Farm or Allston on the main line. Further than this, a passenger can go to Waban, Eliot or Woodland via Riverside as cheaply as by the Circuit line direct.

It is also provided that a ticket to Riverside reading by way of the Circuit line, which costs $3, is also good on the main line to the same point. The rate, however, by the latter is $2.01.

SUFFRAGISTS

Welcomed to Newton by Prominent Citizens.

Speeches by Mayor Weeks and Congressman Powers.

We take pleasure in publishing the speeches of Mayor Weeks and Congressman Powers at the reception given the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association last week Thursday at the Hunnewell Club, by the Newton Equal Suffrage League.

Mayor Weeks said:

It is my pleasure and duty to extend to you the welcome of this municipality and through it the welcome of the people of Newton. This welcome will bear the marks of true hospitality for it is extended not because a majority, or perhaps more than a small minority of the people of Newton believe in the principles which you advocate, but because in this broad land there is today no community which is more ready to hear not only the things which its people believe, but also the things which others believe, and because the minds of our people are so open that they will weigh what they hear and judge fairly and impartially what is best and what is not best. In other words, we in Newton, at least, have become civilized enough so that we are quite willing to listen to what others have to say even if we do not agree with it. More than that—we want to hear what those of other principles have to say because it may convince us of our error, and we may greatly profit by giving careful attention to the discussions at such a meeting as this.

I presume that these meetings are intended to be educational in their character, and I trust they, at least the public ones, will be generously attended by our citizens who will in this way obtain the benefit of your views which, biased though they may be, are certainly formed after giving careful consideration to the subject and giving careful study to public and social subjects is just what we are apt to fail to do. Indeed, it seems to me that we need some kind of a revival and stir people up to do their duty in this respect. We have forced upon us a great number of semi-political social questions such as that of labor, socialism, woman suffrage, the single tax and many kindred topics which must be faced by the intelligent people of every community and settled within the next decade in a just, wise and fair manner and it is appalling to know how few people are really giving those subjects careful study and consideration and how many are ready to decide them as their prejudices or their own selfish interests dictate; therefore, if this meeting does nothing more for our citizens or for your cause than to stir up in the minds of our people a desire and willingness to give careful consideration to such topics, the meeting will have justified itself and you will deserve the thanks of the citizens of Newton in something more than a prefatory sentence.

There are those who advocate conservatism in such matters, but conservatism is apt to mean stagnation, and radical changes are never made by or through conservatism; they are made by agitation and every good and active citizen sooner or later becomes an agitator of some subject. In the agitation of this cause you undoubtedly will meet many sneers and much adverse comment as has every great change since the world began, but if we examine our history we will find that those whose memory the world honors today were the agitators of previous generations. Half of the monuments in Boston are erected to such, Samuel Adams and Garrison and Sumner and others are the names we now remember because they did something more than cater to their own selfish interests; they tried to do something to help their fellow men.

If you really believe in woman suffrage, continue to agitate it until your belief prevails or until you are proven to be wrong by the adverse majorities of your fellow citizens, and as I said in the beginning, you can find no place where you will be given a more respectful hearing and your views given more careful consideration than in Newton.

Congressman Powers said: Of late I have been engaged in talking to a portion of our people who have the right of suffrage, but who are in doubt how to exercise it. Tonight I am to talk to another portion of our people, who have not the right of suffrage, but who think they would know how to exercise it in case it was granted to them.

I imagine that it is too late in the day to undertake to question the Creator's purpose in making woman. She is already an accomplished fact; she is here and she has come to stay and we might as well accept her. You may have heard the story of the young unmarried man who at one time was vaguely discussing the proper sphere for woman when a stern matron of forty turned to him and said "Young man, will you tell me what you consider the proper sphere for woman," and he calmly replied "The celestial sphere."

Even if we should assume that all womankind is on the direct road to the celestial sphere, nevertheless we are confronted with the question as to what rights she is to have while in this earthly sphere.

Some one has said that when the United States is fully reconstructed, every good woman will have a wedding ring on her finger and a ballot in her hand. The question when she is to have the wedding ring is usually settled by herself and I imagine the question when she is to have the ballot is also to be largely settled by herself. The fact is we men have very little to say concerning matters pertaining to marriage and those pertaining to the right of women to vote. It is the purpose of all women to be married, that purpose would be accomplished without doubt, providing there were men enough to go around. If all women desired to vote that purpose would readily be accomplished as soon as the expression of that desire was made known to the men. The fact is we men are not so much of a stumbling block to your progress as you may sometimes imagine.

It is said that man's admiration for woman never flags; that he will give her half his fortune, the whole of his heart, and that he seems always willing to give her everything that he possesses except his seat in the trolley car and the right of suffrage. If she only had the right of suffrage, she would be more likely to get her seat in the trolley car, particularly from those of us who are candidates for political office.

Some years ago we men became very much disturbed because women were taking an active part in the industrial affairs of the world. We had a feeling that there was only work for half of humanity, and that every time a woman received employment a man must go idle, but it did not take some men long to find the remedy for the situation,—he married a woman, permitted her to work, and became a gentleman of leisure himself. This, you see, did not in any way interfere with the theory that there was only work enough in the world to keep half of humanity busy.

As time goes on I am satisfied that men and women are coming to understand each other far better than ever before. A century ago if a married woman exercised even the smallest influence over her husband he appeared to resent it, and feel that the marital ties were fetters of bondage. You remember the old poet said, "Disguise our bondage as we will, 'Tis woman, woman rules us still."

Modern legislation is gradually but surely making a place for women in the industrial world. The relationship to property which so long vexed the situation, has gradually cleared up, and now woman, under the progressive legislation of most states is permitted to hold property, make contracts, and is permitted to enjoy the great luxury of suing and being sued.

Woman has become indispensable to the progress of commercial life. If she were removed from it our industrial life would be seriously crippled.

Now, a word as to the question of equal suffrage between men and women. Of course, there is no argument against it. No one is called upon to make an argument in its favor until some one advances a sound argument against the proposition. Suffrage today is a monopoly. It is held by the comparative few. About one-fourth of the population of the United States, representing perhaps a trifle more than one-half of the property ownership of the country, have the exclusive right of suffrage, which means the right to elect all our public servants and officers, and either directly or indirectly to make all laws for the government of organized society. You may very properly say that the right of suffrage today is held by a trust; that the man who votes today acts as a trustee, voting not only for himself, but for the other three-fourths of the population who are permitted to vote. If equal suffrage were extended to women the number exercising the right would be doubled, but the limitation would still exist, although in a less degree.

No one can honestly claim that there is an inherent right in man to have the exclusive right of voting. It is a privilege which was conferred upon man at a time when woman's sphere of usefulness and importance in the world of affairs was far more limited than at present. I am not disposed to believe that we men withhold from you women the right of suffrage from selfish motives. Up to the present time the male voters of Massachusetts have remained in doubt as to whether a majority of your sex desired to have this privilege conferred upon you. Whenever a majority of the women of Massachusetts express themselves in favor of receiving the right of suffrage it will be granted to you as promptly as possible.

That is a problem which you yourselves must work out. I know it is claimed that if woman is morally entitled to vote, equal suffrage ought to be granted to her, even though it may not be exercised by one in ten. That proposition may be sound. Nevertheless it gives the men a most excellent excuse to withhold a right which is demanded by the minority and not the majority of your sex. I think every one who has studied the practical workings of woman's suffrage in Colorado, Wyoming and Montana will agree that it has worked to the great advantage of the people of those states, and I have no question that if equal suffrage were granted throughout the United States, it would have a tendency to elevate our standard of citizenship.

The Montana copper war has occupied the centre of the stage the past week. The opposing forces seem to be more ready to fight than to "make peace," but when each side has fired its last gun, the idle miners and public sentiment will force a truce and ultimate settlement by arbitration. Meanwhile, all investors need to keep in mind that the war is now a tie fight, while stocks do not go down; and that a declaration of peace would mean an enthusiastic rally.—Curtis & Sederquist.

Candidate Ivy in his speech of last week, criticizes the recent street railway merger in this city and claims that the expense of the consolidation comes out of the pockets of the public.

We do not recall that Mr. Ivy was prominent, when in the board of aldermen and a member of its street railway committee, in opposing the unanimous desire of that board and committee, that the separate companies then operating in Newton should be consolidated. After long and hard work, the merger has been completed, and as the public still pays a five cent fare and rides in new and handsome cars with the best of modern equipment and service at its disposal, we fail to see the very serious extent of the injury of which Candidate Ivy complains. In point of fact the service has been greatly benefited by the most excellent work of President Clafin and his associates, and the street railway service in Newton today is far superior to that in cities of similar population either in the state or country.

It is rumored that all the commercial electric lighting service in Newton and Watertown is about to be benefited by the application of the Boston Edison Co.'s rates for light and power.

These rates, generally speaking, are somewhat more liberal than the rates heretofore in force, and also include free lamps and renewals. These changes, if carried out, will probably prove an incentive, for the more common use of electricity for light and power.

Among Women.

The annual convention of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association was held last week Friday in the West Newton Unitarian Church on the invitation of the Newton Equal Suffrage League.

There was a large attendance at the morning session when Mrs. Anna H. Shaw spoke on "The Fate of Republics."

At the election of officers these Newton ladies were honored with positions. Honorary vice-president, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward; director, Miss Susan A. Whiting; Hon. William Clafin was also chosen an honorary vice-president.

The regular meeting of the West Newton Educational Club will be held Friday, Nov. 13, 1903, at 2.30 P.M., in the parlors of the Unitarian church. The speaker, Rev. Calvin Stebbins of Framingham, Mass. Subject: "The Louisiana Purchase."

At the meeting of the Social Science club at the Hunnewell club next Wednesday morning at 10.30, vacation papers will be given.

At the meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's club held Thursday afternoon of last week a lecture recital was given on Wagner by Mrs. B. B. Buck and Mrs. G. F. Spaulding. Mrs. Buck read a paper on Wagner's life and as she gave an account of his principal works Mrs. Spaulding illustrated with selections on the piano.

A home meeting of the Newtonville Woman's Guild was held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the New Church on Highland avenue. The charitable committee was in charge and an address on "Prison Reform" was given by Mr. Warren F. Spaulding. Next Tuesday afternoon at 4.30 in the New Church parlors a special meeting will be held when Dr. L. B. Briggs, president of Radcliffe college will speak on "Discipline in School and College."

The regular meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club will be held Friday afternoon, Nov. 13, in the parlors of the West Newton Unitarian church. The Educational Committee, Mrs. Clifford, chairman, will be in charge and Rev. Calvin Stebbins of Framingham will make an address on "The Louisiana Purchase."

A meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the New Church parlors, Newtonville, Wednesday, Nov. 11, at 2.30. The meeting will be in the interest of school suffrage and Mrs. Maud Wood Park will be the speaker.

Hunnewell Club.

An interesting and artistic program has been arranged for the concert next Wednesday evening by the Boston Philharmonic sextette, assisted by Mrs. Viola Waterhouse, organist.

FOR WEED.

Caucus Nominations Filed by Republicans.

Alderman Weed Unopposed for Mayor—Other Nominations.

Republican nomination papers for the city caucuses to be held Nov. 18 were filed with the City Committee yesterday afternoon at the Masonic Building, Newtonville.

President Alonzo R. Weed, of the board of aldermen is the only nominee for mayor and he has a strong list of names on his nomination paper.

Only two contests developed, one for the nomination for alderman at large in Ward Five, now held by Alderman Walter Chesley. Mr. Chesley is again a candidate and he is opposed by Mr. Thomas W. White, who is the candidate of the younger element in the ward.

In Ward One papers for school committee have been filed in the interests of Willard G. Brackett and Joseph L. Caverly.

The nominations are as follows:

For Mayor,

Alonzo R. Weed.

For aldermen at large,

Ward 1, Charles E. Riley.
Ward 2, Charles S. Dennison.
Ward 3, Benjamin S. Palmer.
Ward 4, Peter C. Baker.
Ward 5, Walter Chesley, Thomas W. White.

Ward 6, Endicott P. Saltonstall.
Ward 7, Charles S. Ensign.

For Ward Aldermen.

Ward 1, William P. Sweeney.
Ward 2, Charles D. Cabot.
Ward 3, Henry H. Hunt.
Ward 4, Frederick Johnson.
Ward 5, Frederic W. Webster.
Ward 6, Elias B. Bishop.
Ward 7, Thomas Weston, Jr.

For School Committee.

Ward 1, Willard G. Brackett, Joseph L. Caverly.
Ward 2, Abbot Bassett.
Ward 3, Fred E. Whiting.
Ward 4, Lewis P. Everett.
Ward 5, William E. Parker.
Ward 6, Rev. Robert K. Smith.

Death of Ephraim H. Harden.

Mr. Ephraim H. Harden, a resident of Auburndale for 33 years, died at his home on Central street last Monday of paralysis after a week's illness. Deceased was a native of Trenton, now Lamoine, Maine, and when a young man resided at South-west Harbor and Ellsworth. During the Civil War and afterwards he held the office of deputy collector of internal revenue for Hancock county with headquarters at Ellsworth, and later was salesman for H. Barker & Co., and a travelling salesman for Thomas Dana & Co. of Boston. On account of failing health Mr. Harden gave up this business twelve years ago. He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter. Funeral services were held from his late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, Rev. John Matteson officiating, and the interment was in Newton cemetery.

Y. M. C. A.

The increase in membership is very encouraging. During the two weeks in October in which the association rooms were open, 85 members were received.

Rev. R. K. Smith, assistant rector of Grace Episcopal church, will address the men's meeting at 4 P.M. Sunday. Any man will be welcome. At 3 P.M. Mr. A. A. Parker, a student at Harvard University, will conduct a boys' Bible class.

The boys' record of 37 in one gymnasium class remains unbroken. The senior class is steadily growing in numbers and will soon surpass that record if the juniors do not add to their number rapidly. A very pretty emblem has been chosen by the physical department committee to be worn by Y.M.C.A. athletes. It consists of a triangle, the emblem of the association, bordered with winter, signifying speed. The colors are red and grey.

NEWTON.

The annual dance of the non-commissioned officers association of Company C, 5th Regiment, M.V.M., was held last evening in Armory hall. There was a large number present and music was provided by Thomas' orchestra.

"Mammonism; or Revenue without Religion" will be the subject of the sermon at the Immanuel Baptist church next Sunday evening. Fine music by the Arlington male quartet of Boston. Large congregations are attending these services.

A meeting and banquet of the Men's Club was held Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Methodist church. About 50 were present and Mr. A. R. Weed presided. Hon. S. L. Powers gave an interesting address on "Reminiscences of Congress."

A largely attended musicale was held at the residence of Mrs. Charles Whittemore on Summit street last Tuesday evening. An artistic program was given by Miss Katherine Ricker, contralto; Miss Katherine Hooper, reader; Mr. Carl Webster, violinist; Mr. Junius B. Hill, pianist; Miss Mabel Adams Bennett, accompanist.

A reception to Rev. and Mrs. Adelbert L. Hudson was given by the Channing branch of the Women's Alliance in the Channing church parlors last evening. There was a large attendance and Rev. and Mrs. Hudson were assisted in receiving by Mr. Fred W. Stone, chairman of the Standing Committee and Mrs. Stone. The refreshment tables were presided over by Mrs. W. F. Garcelon, Mrs. R. C. Emery and Mrs. J. M. Quimby.

SHELDON-BULLEN.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin A. Bullen on Cypress street, Cambridge, last Wednesday evening occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elsie Bullen to Mr. Herbert P. Sheldon of West Newton, son of Prof. Henry C. Sheldon of Boston University. Prof. Sheldon was the officiating clergyman and there were no attendants. Miss Bertha A. Aldrich played the wedding march on the piano assisted by Mr. Ernest M. Sheldon on the violin. The bride wore a costume of white crepe de chine with cream lace trimmings. The house was decorated with palms, roses and chrysanthemums. Mr. Sheldon is a graduate of the Boston University law school and is a member of a Boston law firm. Mrs. Sheldon was graduated at the Cambridge Latin school and Boston University. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon will make their future home in Newtonville.

Thackeray's Nature.

Thackeray created quite erroneous impressions of himself by often indulging in irony in the presence of people who were incapable of understanding it. One curious instance which he gave was this: Thackeray had been dining at the Garrick and was talking in the smoking room after dinner with various club acquaintances. One of them happened to have left his cigar case at home. Thackeray, though disliking the man, who was a notorious tuft hunter, good naturedly offered him one of his cigars. The man accepted the cigar, but, not finding it to his liking, had the bad taste to say to Thackeray, "I say, Thackeray, you won't mind my saying I don't think much of this cigar?" Thackeray, no doubt irritated at the man's ungraciousness and bearing in mind his tuft hunting predilections, quietly responded, "You ought to, my good fellow, for it was given me by a lord." Instead, however, of detecting the irony, the doft immediately attributed the remark to snobishness on Thackeray's part and to the end of his days went about declaring that "Thackeray had boasted that he had been given a cigar by a lord."

Witty Response of a Lecturer.

A professor who acted as chairman of a meeting at which Max O'Rell was to lecture introduced the Frenchman in the following manner: "Ladies and gentlemen, when we wish to see ourselves as individuals we have recourse to the mirror. This we cannot do as a nation. I take pleasure in introducing a gentleman who will act as a French mirror, by means of which you will, I am sure, obtain an adequate and pleasing view of yourselves as a nation." The introduction pleased O'Rell, and he responded in a vein as jovial: "I am requested to reflect on a nation. However, I must take second place to the man in the moon, for he reflects on the earth. As an imported French mirror I shall do the best I can to give you a correct picture of the nation. And if your chairman remains where he is, in the background, he will add greatly to the reflective power of the mirror."

Origin of Life Insurance.

"I don't have to have my life insured," said the business man to the agent, "but I do want to know how life insurance originated. Can you tell me?" "I can," the agent answered. "It originated in 1706 in London. In that year there was formed the first life insurance company. It was called the Amicable Society for a Perpetual Assurance Office. It was a mutual benefit concern. Each member, without reference to age, paid a fixed admission fee and a fixed annual charge per share on from one to three shares, and at the end of the year a portion of the fund accumulated was divided among the heirs of those who had died in accordance with the number of shares each dead person had held. Out of this company, with its crude and imperfect methods, life insurance as it exists today has grown."—Philadelphia Record.

A Story of Young Dan Webster.

A New York lawyer recently told an interesting story of Daniel Webster's boyhood. "Little Dan and his younger brother," said the legal light, "had each been given some money. They started out gleefully, and it was evening before they got back home. 'Well, Dan,' said the senior Webster, 'what did you do with your money?' 'Spent it,' the boy answered sturdily. 'And how about you? What did you do with your money?' the father asked the younger brother. 'I loaned it to Dan,' was the reply."

Scotch Coolness.

Speaking of Scotch characteristics, an Englishman traveling in this country told a story illustrative of Scotch coolness under trying circumstances. "A number of Scots," he said, "were working on a fifteen story building. One up near the roof lost his foothold and fell. But even in his swift descent through the air he remained quite cool and calm. In fact, as he shot past a friend on the twelfth story he sang out: 'Eh, Sandy, man, sic a fall as I shall nee!'"

Clubman's Submerged Tenth.

There is hardly a club, even among the oldest, that does not possess its almost woefully poor members; men who dropped ammunition and their tailor simultaneously, who try to hide even from themselves the whereabouts of their dismal "clubbings," which is one room; who have no want that does not begin and end with their clubs and who would fade away and die miserably if its doors were closed to them.—Court Journal.

On His Mind.

Long—Have you forgotten that $10 you borrowed of me some time ago. Short—Oh, no, I still have it in mind. Long—Well, don't you think this would be a good time to relieve your mind of it?

A Hunter.

"Do you think Skinner can make a living out there?" "Make a living? Why, he'd make a living on a rock in the middle of the ocean if there was another man on the rock."

A Possible Exception.

Wife—Isn't it a fact, dear, that handsome men are proverbially disagreeable? Husband—Well, I don't know, I always try to be pleasant.

A SPRIG OF THOUGHTS.

The Editor of the Graphic:—

A community is to be congratulated whose local papers, contain, besides whatever local small talk is in them, articles, long or short, on topics of real public interest, such as the one session plan for grammar schools, and shade trees (see the Graphic for Oct. 23) or such larger topics as "Equal Suffrage," and "Swedenborg" (see the Graphic for Oct. 16th).

Therefore, following the example of those to whom thinking has become a real, if not a recognized occupation, I would offer a sprig of thoughts on two of the foregoing topics, though, truly, each of them merits a column or a magazine article, if not a book.

First, "Equal Suffrage." On this subject the decisive thought for me, has for years been this. Equality between things different is not identity. A peach and an apple, an ox and a horse, a pond and a hill, a teacher and an artist, may be equals in attractive, useful and desirable qualities, yet neither they nor their qualities are the same. Just so, man and woman may be equals in worth, capacities, endowments, and as contributors in distinctive ways to human welfare and progress; yet, neither they nor their activities are identical. The ninety-six per cent of Massachusetts women, who did not want the suffrage, simply recognized and contentedly accepted this natural fact as being neither of possible human making or unmaking. In thus acting, they were freely happy, honorable and intelligent, and were and are, so far as true to themselves and to life, unspokeably useful. It is, therefore, only gratuitously unkind and disrespectful to apply to them such terms as "ignorant," "abject," and their own "worst enemy," or to seek to force upon them what they instinctively and intelligently reject. This rejection being an indisputable and presumably a decisive fact, Dr. Lyman Abbot's famous article in the September Atlantic simply explains why it is very tempting to turn to the closely allied question of the real social unit, but space forbids.

Second, "Swedenborg." He was a remarkable man, born by the way, in the famous year 1688, which finally relieved England from the tyrant Stuart dynasty. He not unnaturally influenced many, and has had a considerable following of a certain type. But that never did and never will religiously authorize what he never sought, viz., the founding of a new sect. "One is your Master, and all ye are brethren." The one only duly authorized church began in the upper chamber at Jerusalem, Acts 1: 13, 14.—here quoted as volume first of church history. It began only with the supreme authority clearly indicated in Acts 1: 1-4. With singularly instructive appropriateness to present disunity, its first formal act—Acts 1: 15-26—was the gravely devout and orderly beginning of the same historic continuity that is with us today as the clue by which to successfully return to a lost Christian unity.

This unity, divinely pictured in its temper, aim and substance in Eph. IV: 2-6, can be effectually regained only by a return in spirit to that same hallowed upper chamber, there to find and hold fast what has been unhappily lost in the ages since, and to drop all unauthorized additions, since made, to what was then held as enough. Thus only can be realized St. Augustine's magnificent ancient Christian motto: "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; [which] allows all proper growth, freedom and individuality; in all things charity." Also, thus only can be realized the highest and one only divine ideal, "one fold and one shepherd;" in which one fold, embraced within a truly catholic comprehensiveness, "non-essentials," will never be made the ground of separate organization. S. E. WARREN.

DEATH OF ANDREW S. MARCH.

Mr. Andrew S. March died at his residence on Park street Tuesday afternoon after many months of illness.

Andrew Sumner March was born at Boston, Mass., June 24, 1833, his parents being Andrew S. and Ann E. March. He was educated at Chauncy Hall school at Boston.

In business Mr. March was for about half a century the selling agent of J. & P. Coats of Paisley, Scotland, with offices in Boston. Mr. March was treasurer of the Rebecca Pomroy Home for many years, was the treasurer of the Eliot Memorial before it was turned over to the city, and has been the president of the Ingleswood Club of New-Braunswick for ten years. He was a member of the Eliot church, and served on the building committee for the present edifice. He was also an original member of the Newton and Haverhill clubs.

Mr. March was twice married, having two children, Annie and Andrew S. March, Jr., by the first marriage. His second wife, who survives him, was Miss Melissa Jenkins and they have two living children, Herbert B. March of Orange, N. J., and Clara D., the wife of Arthur W. Dennison. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and the services are private.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

Park Theatre.—There is a peculiar fascination about Annie Russell as an actress, and one can go to the theatre repeatedly and enjoy the impersonations which she gives. At the Park theatre last Monday evening she opened the fourth week of her engagement in "Mice and Men," and there was a continuation of the cordiality and enthusiasm which have been recorded during the past three weeks. Miss Russell will give the last Boston performances of "Mice and Men" on Saturday, Nov. 14, Tuesday, Nov. 17, she will present "The By-Path," a new play, written for her by C. Haddon Chambers. On Monday night, Nov. 16, the theatre will be closed for final rehearsal.

Hub Theatre.—No expense has been spared by Walter Fessler, the author and manager of the "Great White Diamond" which will be presented at the Hub theatre all next week. It is a melodrama of the cleanest type full of noble sentiment and truth of character. Gorgeous scenery, marvelous mechanical effects, great play, great company, great specialties. A heart story of South Africa and the "Sierra Nevada Mountains." "The Nycetals" a weird character and new to the stage, will set you thinking.

Boston Music Hall.—This is certainly the era of the dramatized novel. One book that has had a tremendous vogue is to be seen in play shape at the Boston Music Hall next week. It is "David Harum," the rights of which are the property of Charles Frohman. Its principal actor is the well-known comedian, W. H. Turner and his success in it is said to be of the most pronounced order. The play had upwards of two hundred presentations in New York and has been doing on the road, in theatrical parlance, a record breaking business.

Children's Theatre.—What could have been more charming than the audience of enthusiastic adults and merry little people that gathered on Saturday to be sweetly entertained by the thoroughly edifying production at the Children's theatre. The opening was a signal success under the new management of Capt. Eddy of the Huntington Bureau. Many needed additions to the theatre have been made, no expense being spared to gain pleasing surroundings for the production of the Fairland Plays which are to be presented, together with Spectacular Drills, fancy dances, songs and brilliant choruses. The Motion Pictures of Uncle Tom's Cabin were a pleasing feature and the play "Little Red Riding Hood" delighted all. Many novelties are to be produced later which will include Jack and the Beanstalk, The Corsicans, A Dream of Ancient Greece, which is a series of Dissolving Living Pictures, some times termed "Frozen Art," and the moving pictures "Fairland." Performances will be given every Saturday at 2:30 and Thanksgiving afternoon and evening.

Majestic Theatre.—If the past week is any indication, "The Earl of Pawtucket," bids fair to repeat its remarkably successful record in New York. Boston has taken kindly to the Kirke La Shelle production of Augustus Thomas' play, and from present evidence "The Earl of Pawtucket" with Mr. Lawrence D'Oraay and the excellent cast will remain the fad for some time to come. Brilliant and fashionable audiences have crowded the theatre at every performance and the box office tells a story that seats are selling far in advance.

Keith's Theatre.—Dr. Carl Perin, the most famous of scientific palmists, is to make his debut at Keith's on Monday, Nov. 9. Dr. Perin is to read the palms of persons in the audiences by means of strong, magnifying glasses. The surrounding vaudeville is exceptionally strong enlisting the services of Milton and Dolly Nobles, who will present the most laugh-provoking sketch in their repertoire, "Why Walker Reformed," in which Mr. Nobles gives about the only tolerable impersonation of an individual with a "gentlemanly jag" that has ever been offered in the varieties. Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardner, in their clever vocal and dancing specialties; Charlie Case, who talks about his father; Musical Dale, the world-famous campanologist; R. J. Jose, the favorite contra tenor ballad singer; Johnson and Wells, two of the "swellest" colored entertainers in the business; John J. Desmond, a marvelous juvenile athlete and the Juggling Barretts, a trio of expert and comic club manipulators, are other strong features of an exceptional show.

Columbia Theatre.—Fay Templeton, the brilliant comedienne at the head of "The Runaways" company, is making her farewell appearances at the Columbia theatre, Boston, this week and has scored one of the most notable successes recorded in Boston in recent years. The beautiful Columbia theatre has been crowded at every performance, and late comers have frequently been compelled to stand. The attraction which follows "The Runaways" at the Columbia will be Paula Edwards in "Winnipeg," a mirthful, musical play by the authors of "Erminie."

Grand Opera House.—The annual engagement of Mr. Thomas E. Shea at the Boston Grand Opera House is always looked forward to as a dramatic treat by theatregoers. It has been felt that good dramatic presentations at popular prices was impossible, but Mr. Shea has dispelled that idea and he will be seen at this theatre next week in a varied repertoire. The repertoire as arranged for this engagement is as follows: Monday and Saturday evenings, "The Belles;" Tuesday and Friday evenings, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde;" Wednesday evening, "Cardinal Richelieu;" Thursday evening, "The Hunchback's Daughter;" or "The Fool's Revenge;" and Tuesday and Thursday and Saturday matinees "The Pledge of Honor."

Delighted Large Audience

"THE DREAM OF DOROTHY" ABLY PRESENTED AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY OF ENTERTAINMENT CLUB.

The Halloween party of the Entertainment Club at the Channing Church last Saturday evening was very enjoyable to the large audience present. The occasion was noteworthy for the fact that "The Dream of Dorothy," a one-act play by Mr. Freeman F. Tilden of Malden and Mr. Leverett D. G. Bentley of this city, was given its first presentation.

The plot is found in the dream of an old country doctor, acted by Mr. Ernest W. Wright, about a former sweetheart of forty years ago, the character of the young doctor being taken by Mr. Bentley, and that of Dorothy by Mrs. R. E. Mandell. Miss Helen A. Mead took the part of Mrs. Judd, the housekeeper of the old doctor.

The stage setting represents the office of the old doctor, on New Year's Eve, and Mrs. Judd and the doctor have a fairly good scene. The doctor recalls some old letters and faded flowers and while musing over them gradually drops asleep. His dream is then represented and the young doctor and Dorothy have a lovers' quarrel over the refusal of the doctor to transgress what he deems to be professional courtesy on the request of Dorothy.

The play ends with the awaking of the old doctor and his grief that it is all a dream.

The characters are cleverly conceived and admirably acted. Little needs to be said after Mr. Wright or Mr. Bentley. Their work is always good and well known in this city. Miss Mead made the most of the opportunities given her in a minor character. It is not too much to say that the audience, however, was in hearty sympathy with Mrs. Mandell in her portrayal of Dorothy. Her stage presence, enhanced by the old fashioned gown she wore, was most attractive and there was little of the amateur about her work.

The lighting effects were nicely managed and Mr. B. L. Goodwin was evidently in the right place as stage manager. Two curtain calls were demanded at the close of the play, and the only adverse criticism heard was regarding the brevity of the play. A brief business meeting of the Club was held after the play, followed by the customary sports of Halloween. The stage was used for bobbing for apples in tubs of water and on the ends of strings. A fortune teller held forth in another part of the parlors, and in the supper room, cider, doughnuts and pumpkin pies were served. The supper table was attractively decorated with pumpkins, apples and candles.

The affair was under the direction of a committee headed by Mr. Ralph W. Bartlett, president of the club.

WHAT TO GIVE A BOY

is a puzzle.
We have solved it. Is he of a mathematical turn of mind? Then this will please him immensely.
It's a clock—made abroad. The parts come sewed on a card. Full instructions and illustrations. He puts the pieces together. He's a clock maker for the time—very simple. Any boy can do it. Interesting, instructive, fascinating. Then he hangs it up in his room and is proud of it because he made it.
The cost? Ah! that's the best part of it—but do let the boy know—$1.50.
Drop us a postal and we will send you a full description; or, better still—just call.
P. S.—Girls like it, too. Sometimes they beat the boys putting it together.

THE PICKARD LETTERS

Interesting Notes of Foreign Travel—Edinburgh, the Most Picturesque City in the World—The House of John Knox—St. Giles' Church, Etc.

The house of John Knox—the Great Reformer—called us and we visited it. It is one of the oldest buildings in the city. It stands on the north side of High street, a little below North Bridge. ["Open Wednesdays and Saturdays. Admission fee 6d. Apply at shop below."] We found ready entrance at the head of the outside stairway and were received and welcomed by a courteous elderly lady, the custodian of the house. She most kindly and patiently took us about the time-touched rooms, over foot-worn floors, and showed us scores of sight-worthy objects. There were books and manuscripts, and various pieces of antique furniture. In a front room Knox had a narrow escape from death. While sitting in meditation an assassin's bullet struck the candlestick before him. His light was spared. In an angle of this room is the window from which he some times addressed the populace. Here he wrote his History of the Reformation, and here, the evening of November 24, 1572, he died, aged sixty-seven, "worn out, exhausted by his extraordinary labor of body and anxiety of mind."

When we left, the custodian, for her kind attention and replies to our many inquiries, was tendered a double fee which she promptly refused to take, insisting upon taking only the sixpence and not a penny more.

Farther west up the hill on the south side of High street is St. Giles' church, one of the principal ornaments of the street. It is a large decorated Gothic edifice, in form a cross with a central square tower terminating in open stone work forming an imperial crown, surmounted by a graceful spire springing from a cluster of pinnacles. In this church Knox preached as pastor. Here in 1565 he delivered one of his most vehement discourses on the subject of Mary's marriage with Darnley. He denounced the nobles and leaders in the congregation for their inaction in the matter. "In a strain of lofty eloquence he denounced, exhorted and warned his hearers with such vehemence," says Melvil, "that he was like to ding the pulpit in blades, and flee out of it." Here James VI was wont occasionally to administer rebuke from his royal seat in the gallery to offensive clergymen. In 1633, under Charles I, the church became the cathedral church, and so continued till Cromwell overturned Episcopacy. Episcopal dignity returned at the Restoration, and was lost again in 1688. In the old church division, one of the four separate places of worship into which the building had been divided, at the south end of the transept, on the 23d of July, 1637, Jennie Geddes hurled her stool at the head of the Dean of Edinburgh, when in obedience to royal command he began to read the collect for the day. She exclaimed as she threw, "Colic, said ye? The De'il colic the name o' ye! Wad ye say mass at my lug?" No further attempt was made to impose the liturgy upon the people. The Geddes stool may still be seen, and a memorial tablet marks the spot where the indignant woman sat. This we saw, without worshipping. Sabbath morning, brother E. and I went up to St. Giles to attend the early military service. We went early, but others had done so too, and we found the parts of the church not reserved for the regiment from the castle already well filled by citizens and strangers. Very choice seats, however, were given us where we could see and hear. Soon the Highland regiment with their band marched in and took their places. The chaplain promptly began the service, all rising to sing, the band accompanying, that soul-stirring hymn,

"Onward, Christian soldiers Marching as to war."

Two thousand voices mostly male, strong and soulful, were lifted up in song. It was a mighty tide of inspiring song.

"With heavenly touch of instrumental sound
In full harmonic number joined" that "lifted one's thoughts to heaven."

The chaplain's discourse on "Steadfastness" was appropriate and eloquent, beginning with the legend of a Roman soldier who stood at his post in Pompeii till smothered by the showers of cinders that came from Vesuvius.

I must add that for some time St. Giles was put to ignominy; internally as a prison; externally stuck about with booths and shops and cobblers' stalls, in which families lived and traded. The like ignominy has befallen other churches that have fallen into the hands of warring sects. St. Giles became a mass of buildings of various ages and styles. In 1832 it was remodeled and the barnacle shops were scraped off.

Near by and just south of the church, in Parliament square, is an equestrian statue of Charles II in bronzed lead. A few steps west of this is Knox's grave. A small bronzed stone in the ground with the initials J. K. marks the spot where, Nov. 26, 1572, the great reformer was laid by nobles and citizens. Regent Morton pronounced this eulogy: "There lies he who never feared the face of man."

A few feet from the northwest corner of St. Giles a heart-shaped figure in the pathway marks the site of the old "Tolbooth," which stood there more than 300 years. In the centre of the heart is the veritable stone that indicated the market cross for 200 years. The Tolbooth degenerated into a prison grim and ghastly. The north gable witnessed, affixed to spikes, the head of Morton in 1581, that of Montrose in 1650; that of Argyle in 1661. This "Heart of Midlothian" was taken down in 1817. You may see an engraving of it in Storer's (your great grandfather) "Views in Edinburgh." (Read Scott's "The Heart of Midlothian.")

We went to Calton Hill, I more than once. It rises 350 feet above sea level and commands a series of fine panoramic views.

"Traced like a map the landscape lies
In cultured beauty stretching wide;
There Scotland's green acclivities,
There ocean with its azure tide,
There Arthur's seat, and gleaming through Thy eastern wing Dun-Edin blue."

Upon the hill is the old observatory used now as self-registering anemometer and rain gauge in connection with the New Royal observatory. Also monuments to the memory of Dugald Stewart and Professor Playfair have been erected there. Near the latter is a National Folly, called "The National Monument." Scotland intended to perpetuate the memory of the achievements of her soldiers who fell in the land and sea fights of Napoleon's time by reproducing the Parthenon at Athens. But she did not count the cost. George IV laid the foundation stone in 1822. Twelve massive pillars were raised at a cost of a thousand pounds each, and the work then stopped for want of funds. The pillars still stand, and seen from a distance, produce a fine effect. A little south of them is Nelson's monument, a circular turret, more than 100 feet high, with battlemented summit. On the flagstaff is a huge ball which drops daily at one o'clock, Greenwich time.

On the lower slope of the hill and on the south side of the road are the Prisons and Old Calton Burying Grounds. In the latter are the graves of David Hume and others of Edinburgh's illustrious sons. Beside the central walk is a tall obelisk called the "Martyrs' Monument," erected in 1842 by the friends of Parliamentary Reform in England and Scotland, in memory of Thomas Muir, Thomas Palmer, William Skirving, Maurice Margarot and Joseph Gerald, martyrs to the cause of that reform, which they advocated 100 years ago and more. I copied the following inscription: "I have devoted myself to the cause of the people. It is a good cause. It shall ultimately prevail. It shall ultimately triumph. Thomas Muir in court of judicary, Aug. 30, 1793." "I know that what has been done these two days will be ultimately rejudged. William Skirving in court of judicary Jan. 7, 1794." The men were banished. What was then done has been rejudged; the cause of the people proved to be "a good cause" which has prevailed. Aug. 27, I have made my second visit to the cemetery by the City Prisons to look once more upon the noble statue in bronze of Abraham Lincoln, which I had been surprised to find there. It stands near Hume's monument. It is finely conceived and executed, and is dedicated to the memory of the Scottish American soldiers who lost their lives in our civil war. The figure of the statue is the figure of a slave holding up his hands and looking up into the face of the great emancipator. The first inscription at the base is the word "Emancipation." Below that on the pedestal is a second one: "To preserve the jewel of liberty in the framework of freedom." About the feet of the statue are wreaths and other tokens of affectionate remembrance, laid by loving hands, some by members of a G.A.R. Post from Philadelphia.

Hume's monument, as I saw it, is a cylinder, in Grecian style, twenty feet in diameter and thirty feet in height. The top of the wall has a Doric entablature and farther down is surrounded by a belt and cornice. In a stone over the entrance was carved this inscription: "David Hume. Born April 26th, 1711. Died August 25th, 1776. Erected in memory of him in 1778."

The following suggested epitaph is not generally known:
"Within this circular Idea,
Called vulgarly a tomb,
The Impressions and Ideas rest
That constituted Hume."

We did not attempt to climb to "Arthur's seat." Physical weakness forbade the effort and we left that lion couchant to continue unmolested to keep watch over the city beneath him. Julia and I did, however, enjoy one morning a delightful ride around the hill. Our driver was intelligent and communicative. Knowing much that he said to be historically and typographically true, we accepted all the rest as equally worthy of belief. Entering the "Queen's Park" near Holyrood Palace, we went first easterly along the Queen's Drive. "St. Margaret's Well" was seen. Near that we were shown the cottage of the Deans and the stone on which Effie Dean is said to have sat while waiting for her villainous lover. St. Anthony's chapel perched on rising ground and St. Anthony's Well a little below and St. Margaret's Loch at the foot of the hill, came into view and were passed. We saw the slopes on which the army of "Prince Charlie" encamped both before and after the battle of Prestonpans. On an elevated spot in the road we stopped and looked down upon the pretty village of Duddingston, with its placid loch in which swans were sailing and upon the village church.

"There," said our driver, pointing to a two-storied house with a red tiled roof "is where 'our Charlie' slept the night before the fight at Prestonpans, or 'Bladenburgh' as the Highlanders call it." (Note the affectionate "Our Charlie.") He still lives in Scottish hearts. A mile beyond, embosomed amid trees on rising ground, appeared the interesting old ruin of Craigmillar Castle. Queen Mary made this a favorite residence after her return from France in 1561. A very small room is shown there as her bedroom. It measures seven feet by five! What a setting for such a gem! Hither to Craigmillar poor Darnley, sick in Glasgow, was assured by Mary he should be brought in a litter. Craigmillar had an ominous sound to Darnley. She told him the air at that castle would be good for him and that with cold baths he would soon recover. But when he had been brought to the gate of the castle, the attendants to take him to Kirk-a-Field. It was vain to protest—to Kirk-a-Field he was carried and there the queen spent much time with him. She was with him the last evening of his life, and left him only three hours before the explosion and Darnley's death.

Continuing our drive, we passed through a deep cut in the road and came upon charming views of the country to the south and west. Soon our driver stopped again, and pointing down to a house and a cluster of trees said: "If you look carefully, you will see that those trees were planted so as to form the ace of clubs. Sir James Conyngham [Cunningham] who owned this estate lost it by gambling. He gambled more and won back all he had lost, and won it by the ace of clubs. In memory of that lucky ace he planted that grove." Soon after leaving this spot, we descended a valley and wound around the base of Salisbury Crags, instead of taking the road at the top of the high slope, the way most frequently taken on account of the view from the elevated platform, or cornice, 570 feet above sea level. "That road is called the Radical Road," said our guide. "The walk along those heights was the favorite one of Hume and of Scott who says, 'It used to be my favorite evening and morning resort when engaged with a favorite author or new subject of study.' Pursuing the lower route we came to the Palace Yard, and passing "Queen Mary's Dial," [a curious horologe, not erected till the time of Charles I] and "Queen Mary's Bath," a quaint old octagonal tower, we returned to our hotel, having had a most delightful drive under an unclouded sky and without a mishap.

Agas. There are signs that liquidation is not entirely completed, at least in the industrial list. The Steel stocks have been exceptionally weak, making new low records in both the common and the preferred. Whether the liquidation will extend to the railroad list, however, may be questioned. The most conservative observers of conditions say that the railroads have seen their lowest prices, and that while they may decline in sympathy with the industrial, yet no pronounced weakness should develop.

That money will not become scarce is evidenced by the fact that the bank reserves are still unusually large for this time of the year, and that gold imports have been so easily obtainable. No apprehension is felt in leading banking circles as to the future of the money market, but it is admitted that rates may stiffen somewhat during the next few weeks.—Curtis & Sederquist.

At the Churches.

Several boys and a boy soloist from Emmanuel church, Boston, have been admitted into the choir of the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale. Rehearsals will be held Friday evenings in the parish house.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Messiah will meet this month with Mrs. V. D. Baldwin on Lexington street, Auburndale.

Mr. Arthur W. Hoe will be in charge of the young people's meeting at the Immanuel Baptist church next Sunday evening. It will be a temperance meeting and the topic will be "How may we help abolish the Saloon?"

The young people of Trinity parish, Newton Centre, provided the entertainment at the Sailor's Haven in Charlestown last Monday evening.

At the Newton Centre Unitarian church next Sunday the Sunday school will consider the subject "The Unforgiving Servant; or The Golden Rule." The Hale union will meet in the evening. Mr. Ward Parks will be the leader and Miss Mary A. Lincoln the speaker.

The following chairmen have been appointed for the monthly sociables to be held at the Immanuel church the coming season: November, Mrs. George H. Hastings; December, Mrs. Jerome Sondericker; January, Mrs. W. S. Hayden; February, Mrs. O. E. Newcomb; March, Mrs. Cotton; April, Mrs. Fawcett.

A committee of ladies of Eliot church are making plans to furnish the Christmas supper for the sailors of the Seamen's Bethel in Boston. The Eliot Guild will send a Christmas box to a colored Sunday school in Georgia.

An entertainment and candy sale is to be given by members of the Auburndale Congregational church on Tuesday, Nov. 24, for the benefit of pioneer work in Maine.

The regular meeting of the West Newton Women's Alliance will be held next Thursday morning in the parlors of the Unitarian church. Mrs. Charles H. Ames will speak on "Israel in Egypt and the Exodus."

Rev. George S. Butters, a former pastor, occupies the pulpit of the Newtonville Methodist church next Sunday morning.

At the annual parish meeting held recently at the Auburndale Congregational church the following officers were elected: Clerk, William H. Blood; treasurer, Charles E. Sweet; standing committee, Arthur C. Farley, George M. Fiske, David F. Parker; collector, Charles W. Blood; auditor, C. V. H. Strongman. The church officers are: Deacon, Arthur W. Kelley; moderator, Raymond L. Bridgman; clerk, Henry G. Hildreth; auditor, Charles H. Johnson. Sunday school superintendent, F. F. Davidson; assistant superintendents, C. B. Conn, Miss Blanche M. Noyes; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Blood; superintendent primary department, Mrs. Harris Haskell.

St. John's church, Newtonville, is to have a two mannel organ, which will probably be ready about Christmas. The order has been placed with the firm of Hook, Hastings & Co.

The Charity Square, connected with Central church, Newtonville, will hold a handkerchief sale in November for the purpose of raising funds to carry on the good work of the organization.

The mid-week meeting at the Immanuel Baptist church this evening will be devoted entirely to prayer for the interests of the local church and to the reading of appropriate scriptures.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church, West Newton, has established an exchange of home made cookery to be held in the chapel the first and third Friday of each month from 3 to 5.

The Ladies' Benevolent society is preparing to hold a sale early in December at the Auburndale Congregational church.

At a recent meeting of the Junior Guild connected with St. John's church, Newtonville, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Alice Frost; secretary, Miss Bertha Blampied; treasurer, Miss Edith Powers; directors, Miss Edith Powers, Miss Eleanor West and Miss Bertha Blampied.

The collection at Eliot church, Newton, next Sunday will be for the North Village church.

The monthly sociable was held at the Immanuel Baptist church last Wednesday evening. A supper was served by Mrs. George H. Hastings and the members of the committee and a social hour followed.

The Junior young people's society of the Newtonville Methodist church have elected the following officers: President, Ethel Bell; vice-president, Leon Atkinson; secretary, Walter Combs; treasurer, Clarence Stewart.

The Kings' Daughters of Central church, Newtonville, are planning a sale of cake and candy, to be held in the vestry, Wednesday, Nov. 25.

The Woman's Guild of St. John's church, Newtonville, met Wednesday with Mrs. E. P. Hatch on Highland avenue.

An open meeting of the Channing branch alliance was held in the Channing church parlors Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Emily A. Field, recording secretary of the National Alliance, was the speaker.

The Rev. O. S. Davis' next lecture in the course will be on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 8 o'clock in the Central Congregational church, Newtonville. Subject, "St. Peter's and the Vatican," illustrated by stereopticon.

There will be a Thanksgiving sale of cake and candy in the Congregational church parlors, Newtonville, on Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 3 P. M.

The first monthly supper and social for the season was held at the Eliot church last evening. Supper was served at 6.30 and an entertainment followed under the direction of Mrs. L. C. Stanton.

Board of Aldermen.

A brief and uninteresting meeting of the aldermen was held on Monday evening. President Weed was in the chair and Aldermen Baker, Barber, Brown, Carter, Chesley, Dennison, Ellis, Ensign, Hubbard, Johnson, Lothrop, Mellen, Saltonstall were also present.

The mayor transmitted the petition of Warren R. Butler claiming damages on account of drain at Chestnut Hill and it was referred to the Committee on Claims. The petition of H. C. Daniels relative to coat of sewer house connection was also referred to the same committee.

The petition of Louis J. Geoffries to move a building on Park place was recalled from the License Committee and granted on motion of Alderman Dennison.

William C. McIntosh was granted a carriage license and petition of H. M. Beal for an auctioneer license was referred to the License Committee.

Reports of the Finance Committee recommending a grant of $5 for the Health Department; recommending transfer of $405.18 from Water for Schools to School Incidentals; recommending $725 additional for Conveyance of Pupils and School Salaries and favorable to order for distribution of sewer assessments to sinking fund and construction accounts were received and the orders subsequently passed.

Reports favoring $5000 for burying city wires and (majority) recommending a bond of $10,000 for purchase of school supplies were also received.

The vote whereby the order granting the Telephone Company pole locations on Madison avenue had been defeated was reconsidered on motion of Alderman Lothrop and the order was then tabled.

An order was adopted declaring the result of state election on Nov. 3, and at 15 o'clock the board adjourned until 5 P. M. Nov. 23.

Mrs. Alice May, for years resident on the continent of Europe and a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music at London, will give lessons in French and German (conversation and theory) and pianoforte for beginners. A specialty made of children. Address, 11 Meredith avenue, Newton Highlands. 13t

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9, 1903.

Events in Panama are being watched here with close interest, and it is the general opinion that the revolution will be successful and that the new Republic of the Isthmus (Republic of the Isthmus) will succeed in establishing its independence, and gaining its recognition by this country. The secession of Panama from Colombia was almost a foregone conclusion after the Bogota government rejected the canal treaty. Panama is geographically separate from Colombia and the interests of the two states are antagonistic, so that when Colombia attempted to block the canal, a separation was inevitable. Panama has declared her independence, adopted a red, white and blue flag, placed a triumvirate in charge of the government, expelled all the Colombian troops, who would not join in the revolution, and has now received a partial recognition by the United States. American warships have arrived at each side of the Isthmus, marines have been landed and this country has made clear its purpose to maintain an open traffic on the isthmus, as it is obliged to do by the treaty of 1846. This treaty was signed with New Granada, a nation of which Colombia is the remaining fraction. In addition to the obligation of our government to maintain open traffic across the isthmus at all times, we agreed also to guarantee New Granada (now Colombia) in its sovereignty and property on the isthmus. We have recognized the de facto government on the Isthmus and authorized our consular officers to do business with it. Senator Cullom, chairman of the Senate Committee of Foreign Relations, is deeply interested in the revolution and says he hopes a government will be established so that the United States can negotiate a canal treaty and proceed with the construction. His opinion is generally adhered to at the Capital. In recognizing the sovereignty of the new republic we should have to consider it as the part of New Granada to which the treaty of 1846 applied, just as we now consider Colombia. Panama is a very small state, about 250,000 inhabitants, and if independent, it would come under the virtual protectorate, if not into actual possession of the United States. This is the opinion held by the European powers, and in their desire to see the canal completed, they seem to make no objection to the Isthmus coming under the control of the United States.

The elections last Tuesday brought much satisfaction to republican politicians here, who are still discussing them with reference to their effect on the presidential campaign next fall. In New York city the municipal campaign became a party one, and of course the democrats won. They always carry the city, but seldom the state. The republicans made many gains in the rest of the state and added to their majority in the legislature. The democratic alliance with Tammany is certain to injure their party, and New York state will no doubt remain in the republican column next fall. As far as the democratic nomination is concerned, those men who have gained the most by the elections are Hearst and Gorman. With the exception of Hearst's papers, the entire press of New York city was against Tammany, and now the successful candidates are calling attention to this fact and expressing their gratitude to Representative Hearst. As Mayor-elect McClellan was born in Saxony, he is not eligible for the nomination and he will no doubt support Hearst, who is making great efforts to win the labor vote. Senator Gorman has the prestige of having carried his state, and is the champion of the southern attitude on the race question. He is regarded as a "safe" candidate and the "money power" is said to favor him. It may be Gorman or Hearst or perhaps Gorman and Hearst, or may be Hearst and Gorman.

Hunnell Club.

A large audience was present.

A WEST NEWTON MUSICAL.

A very attractive program was given at a musical in the parlors of Mrs. Edwin Snell, Lincoln Park, on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Snell, who did the piano work, was assisted by Miss Katherine Crockett of Boston, soprano; Mrs. Gertrude Nickerson Barnes of Somerville, contralto; and Miss Margaret Fay of College Hill, violin. The program gave great satisfaction to the large and appreciative company present. Miss Fay and Miss Crockett have been heard before in West Newton and their thoroughly artistic work is always appreciated. Mrs. Barnes has a rich contralto voice and a very winsome manner. Mrs. Snell, the efficient organist of the Baptist church in Lincoln Park, was heard for the first time here in concert work and her playing both in the solo parts and her accompaniments received well deserved appreciation. The following program was rendered:

1. a. Canzonetta. d'Ambrosio
b. La Captive. Mrs. Beach
2. Elsa's Dream. Wagner
3. Miserere. Gottschalk
4. a. Dear Love when in thine arms. Chadwick
b. A Red, Red Rose. Hastings
5. a. The Willow. Thomas
b. April's Garden. Nevin
c. The Years at the Spring. Beach
6. a. Pierrette. Chaminade
b. Valse Lente-Dolmetich. Mrs. Snell
7. Summer Song. Mattei
8. Violin Obligato to Mrs. Barnes. Hubay
9. Hungarian Potpourri I & IV. Iacome
10. Esquadrille. Lacomme Miss Crockett.
Mrs. Barnes.

BEAUTIFUL QUARTERS.

The well-known Boston firm of Shreve, Crump & Low Co. have just fitted up a new silver room in their building at the corner of Tremont and West street, which is well worth a visit of inspection. The approach through an oddly designed iron gate and a tapestried lined corridor leads one to anticipate the beauties of the room itself. This is furnished entirely in green, with a velvet carpet on the floor and hangings and portieres of the same hue. In the centre is a large round table for the display and leisurely selection of designs and around the sides of the room are arranged the valuable and beautiful sets and pieces of ware for which this firm is noted.

On the floor below, Mr. Alfred S. Norris of this city has charge of the gas and electric fixture department and the rooms under his care have also been refurnished and artistically arranged. The beautiful designs in chandeliers and electrolights are displayed to the best advantage and the Nouveau Art goods which are the specialty of the firm are given a prominent position.

DEATH OF MRS. LANE.

Mrs. Mary Ann Lane, wife of George Lane, passed away at her home on Bacon street, last Friday. Deceased was a native of Liverpool, England, where she was born 66 years ago, but she has lived the greater part of her life in Watertown and Newton. She was an original member of Grace church and attended its services when held in the old Coles' Hall. A husband, one son, three daughters and a brother survive her.

Funeral services were held at Grace church Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Robert Keating Smith officiating, and the interment was at the Common street cemetery, Watertown.

PARENTS RECEPTION.

The parents in the Bigelow school district were invited to meet Supt. Atkinson and the teachers of the school in the assembly hall of the Bigelow building last Friday afternoon and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather about 200 were present.

The affair was wholly informal and very enjoyable. Chocolate and wafers were served and Mrs. H. E. Bothfeld and Mrs. H. C. Sawin presided over the tables.

AN APPEAL

For Contributions to the Newton Hospital.

A Reminder that Hospital Sunday is Approaching.

To our Friends:

In response to the appeal of a year ago we received the largest public contribution in the history of the Newton Hospital. This acknowledgment we now make as our official duty and our grateful privilege.

This year we emphasize the unquestioned value of Newton's most prominent charitable institution, not the value as estimated by area of land or extent of buildings and equipment, but the value actual to our community. We emphasize its value as our refuge for and protection from contagious disease, as our day-by-day assurance that for every ill and accident within our borders here may be found a medical and surgical service unsurpassed, immediately and constantly available.

The maintenance of the Newton Hospital is a responsibility of our own, not one to be shared by residents elsewhere; neither is it at present the duty or within the province of our municipal government to contribute to Hospital support beyond the payment of fixed charges for the care of those who are thus dependent.

The efficiency of our organization is at all times conditioned upon the degree of interest manifested by our citizens, who by their contributions of thought and time and money become co-workers with those who are consecrating their lives to the intelligent and effectual relief of human suffering.

An expression of sentiment would doubtless show nearly, if not quite, a hundred per cent. of our residents as heartily in favor of the continuation of the service rendered by the Newton Hospital, yet not over twenty per cent. contribute in any way to its support. This condition is occasioned largely by lack of investigation and knowledge of the work.

Hospital Sunday is November twenty-second, and during the week commencing with that day the Hospital should, through the church collections and the mails, be the recipient of a total contribution in keeping with the generous inclinations of an increased number of donors. Let each citizen give evidence of a direct and genuine personal interest.

For the Newton Hospital,

Frank A. Day,
A. Lawrence Edmonds,
William P. Ellison,
George Hutchinson,
Charles I. Travelli, Finance Committee.

Y. M. C. A.

At the men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock Rev. George R. Grose speaks. A cordial invitation is extended to men.

At 3 P. M. Mr. A. A. Parker of Cambridge will conduct a Bible class for boys. Last Sunday there was a large attendance, but there is still room for a few more boys who would like to join Mr. Parker's class.

On Saturday, Nov. 21, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association will hold a food sale in the hall. Here may be had many good things appropriate to Thanksgiving time.

There are 80 boys in the junior department from 12 to 16 years of age. On Saturday at 3 P. M. or on Tuesday or Thursday at 5 P. M. 35 or more boys may be seen in the gymnasium class. Parents are invited to visit these classes. Dr. M. E. Gleason or the physical director, Mr. E. C. Wyatt, will be glad to consult with parents in regard to their children and the benefits to be derived from regular gymnastic exercise.

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out?

Tired and completely run down?

You have no vitality, no energy.

You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared.

It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.

Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone.

And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings.

We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness.

To the nursing mother this will come like a God-send.

One bottle will convince you.

Only two contests are on the boards for the Republican caucuses next Wednesday evening, one for the nomination for alderman at large from Ward 5 between Alderman Walter Chesley and Mr. Thomas W. White, and the other between Mr. Willard G.
Brackett and Mr. Joseph L. Caverly for school committee in ward one.

Alderman Chesley, who is completing his seventh year of service at City Hall, is being again urged for the position on the ground that the interests of the district in the matter of a new school building, the preliminaries of which have been handled by him, will be safer in his hands.
Alderman Chesley is running for the alderman at large nomination as his friends believe that it would be un-dignified for him to accept a ward nomination after serving for two terms as an alderman at large.

The candidacy of Mr. Thomas W.
White, the local druggist at Newton Upper Falls, and who by the way, is no relation of ex-Alderman Thomas White of Newton Highlands, is backed by the younger element in the ward who desire recognition and who understand that Alderman Chesley will be retiring at the end of his present term. It is fair to say that Mr.
White's friends desired only the ward aldermanship for him, but realizing that such a course would deprive Waban of a representative in the board, finally concluded to enter him for the nomination of alderman at large.

In ward one, Mr. Brackett consented to accept the nomination for the school board, after being assured that there would be no contest for the office, and his friends were surprised to learn that Mr. Caverly had filed nomination papers at the last moment. Mr. Caverly is master of a Boston school and has a knowledge of practical education which his friends believe well qualifies him for the position. In addition he comes from a part of the ward which is agitating the question of district lines and presumably represents the disaffected element in that matter. Mr. Brackett is too well known in this city as a successful business man and a former member of the committee, for further comment at this time.

The other nominees are unopposed and will be unanimously endorsed.

Death of Rev. Mr. Hilton.

Rev. Ora M. Hilton passed away at his home on Baldwin street Tuesday of Bright's disease after a several weeks' illness, aged 50 years. He was a native of North Anson, Me., and when young attended the schools of that state. Later he was connected with the Gospel Banner, a Universalist paper published at Augusta, Me., and from there went to Canton, N. Y., where he pursued his studies at St. Lawrence University.
After graduation he entered the ministry which occupation he followed for 18 years, filling successful pastorates at the Universalist churches in St. Alban's, Vt., Clifton Springs, and Auburn, N. Y. Owing to failing health he resigned from the latter charge a year ago and moved to Newton. He was a trustee of St. Lawrence University. A widow, a son and daughter, a sister and two brothers survive him. Funeral services were held from the family residence this morning at 10 o'clock and were attended by relatives and friends.
The clergymen officiating were Rev.
Albert Hammatt of Newtonville,
Rev. Charles Conklin of Boston, state missionary for the Universalist denomination, Rev. Francis A. Gray of Somerville, Rev. C. Frank Andrews of Canton and Rev. F. A. Bisbee, D.
D., editor of the Christian Leader.
The interment was at Forest Hills.

Golf.

Mr. Andrew S. Woods of Brae Burn is the new golf champion of Newton, having won that title by defeating Mr. Percival Gilbert, the former champion, last Tuesday on the Albemarle links by one up 37 holes.
Gilbert led in the playing until the 34th hole where he was 2 up. Woods captured the 35th and 36th holes and won the match at the 37th hole.

E. H. Kidder of Newton Centre won the consolation prize the same day by defeating P. W. Whittemore of Brae Burn by the score of 5 up, 4 to play.

FOR CHESLEY.

Reasons Given for His Renomination.As Alderman At Large From Ward Five.

To the Voters of the City of Newton.

The re-election of Mr. Walter Chesley, as Alderman at large from Ward 5 is urged by his supporters for the following reasons:—

The Upper Falls has been working for a new School House for over three years, and although a new building is now practically assured, the apportionment has not yet been made and the question of securing additional land to properly locate the building is still being agitated.

Mr. Chesley has been foremost in this matter, which is the most important municipal work that the City has ever undertaken in this village.

It would seem to be a grave mistake to change our representative on the Board at this time while this business is still unfinished.

Mr. Chesley, although desirous of being relieved of further official duties consented to run again at the urgent request of friends, who thought that local interests demanded his re-election.

After Mr. Chesley had consented to run, it was learned with regret that another candidate had appeared, who based his claim for recognition on promises said to have been made by some of the political managers in the Ward, two or more years ago. Whoever made these promises could not foresee the conditions that exist today, and we believe these conditions now make it desirable that Mr. Chesley should be nominated at the Caucus next Wednesday, for there is still truth in the adage that it is not wise to swap horses while crossing a stream.

in the morning and evening by telephone at his residence, Newton, 152-4.

Improved Service.

The subscribers to the Newton telephone exchange will be pleased to learn that the change to the new telephone building on Elmwood street will take place tomorrow and that the improved modern service will then become operative.

The principal change, as far as the subscribers are concerned, is the abandonment of the present system of calling the central office by ringing a bell, and the substitution of the automatic light system, similar to that now in use in Boston. Beginning Sunday, central office will be called by simply lifting the receiver from its hook. This action illuminates a tiny signal lamp in front of the operator, who gives the call her immediate attention. The system will be operated with the present instruments, although the obsolete batteries and crank boxes will be gradually removed. After a call has been made, and the operator's attention is again desired, the subscriber should slowly move the hook of the receiver up and down for a few times, thereby flashing light at the central office. There will be no occasion hereafter to ring off when through talking as the hanging up of the receiver will signal the operator that the connection is no longer needed.

The operators will be provided with breast transmitters, which move with the body and keep the mouth at an even distance from the diaphragm. This will obviate the unevenness often noticed in the voice of the operator.

A description of the new building is unavoidably postponed until next week.

Among Women.

'The first open meeting of the season of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs was held in the New Church parlors, Newtonville, last

—The funeral of Mrs. Mary Howe, widow of Jeremiah Howe, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph C. Snow on Turner street Wednesday of last week, was held from the family residence Saturday at 10 o'clock. Rev. Albert Hammett officiated and the interment was at Forest Hills.

—In Denison hall last Friday evening a dancing party was given under the auspices of the Universalist Sunday school. About fifty couples were present and the affair was in charge of Miss Susie Cabot, Miss Marion Fisher, Messrs. William Zoller, William Tomlinson, C. F. Hultberg and others.

—The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Corey of Harvard street will sympathize with them in the loss of their son, Alfred Chester Corey, on Wednesday. The lad was born in Dorchester fifteen years ago and was a student at the Newton high school where he had attained high rank in his studies. The funeral will be held from the house Saturday at 2 o'clock.

COPELAND-KIRK.

A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Robert Kirk on Henshaw street West Newton last Wednesday evening when his daughter, Margaret, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert M. Copeland of Revere. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Theodore P. Prudden, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The best man was Mr. Colin Campbell of Boston and the matron of honor, Mrs. Colin Campbell, sister of the bride. The bride was gowned in light fawn colored crepe de chine over silk with white lace trimmings and carried white chrysanthemums. The matron of honor's dress was pale gray crepe de chine over gray silk trimmed with pink panne velvet and lace. The house was decorated with white chrysanthemums and laurel. They were the recipients of many beautiful wedding gifts. After a few weeks bridal trip, Mr. and Mrs. Copeland will reside at 105 Shirley avenue, Revere.

Literary Notes.

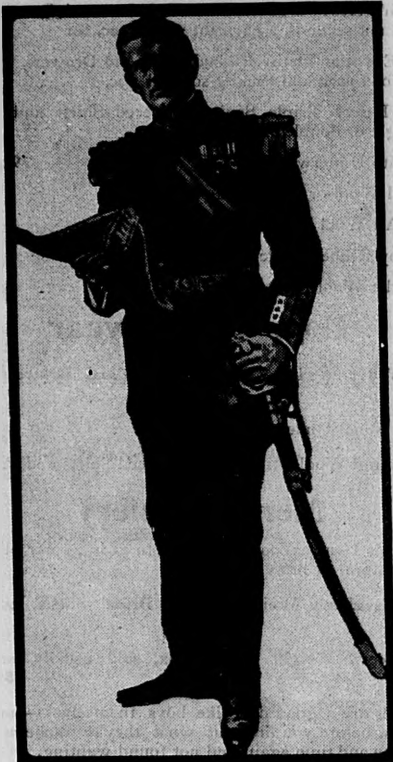

"The Rockies," by Kathryn White, a charming picture of "the backbone of the continent," is the opening number of the Four-Track News for November; J. Caldwell Burnes, in an interesting article, tells of the quaint customs of San German, one of Porto Rico's ancient towns; with a poetic touch, characteristic of her pen, Kathleen L. Grieg contributes an article entitled "Wave Witchery," a dream of the sea; "Nature's Treasure-house" is the caption under which Earl W. Mayo describes a visit to the American Museum of Natural History; George Wharton James briefly tells of "The Prickly Pear as Food," and Caspar W. Hodgson contributes an article on "The Great Shoshone Falls," "A Notable Surrender" is the story of the battlefield of Saratoga; "Echoes from Sleepy Hollow" is a beautifully written article by Minna Irving; "A Mirror of the Alps," by Guy Morrison Walker, is a satisfying picture of Lake Como and its surroundings; Reverend Minot J. Savage contributes an article on "The Influence of Travel," and Mrs. G. M. Clapham tells of the "Oyster Gardens" of Long Island. Minor articles are "The Shrine of Guadalupe," "The Patriot's Windmill," "The Fountains of Perpetual Youth," "Hunting with Chertah," and "The Profitable Olive," which, together with the usual departments, brief poems and a generous sprinkling of humor, make up the table of contents for November. The illustrations in this issue are quite equal to those of any previous number.

The Four-Track News is fifty cents a year, or five cents a copy, and can be had of George H. Daniels, Publisher, 7 East 42d Street, New York. The "Promotion of the Admiral," by Morley Roberts, which has just been issued from the press of L. C. Page & Co. is a collection of sea yarns which are in little different style from the conventional story and which will be a refreshing contrast to the reader.

Love Affairs of Great Men. The Schumann's.

"The Love Affairs of Great Musicians," in two volumes, is a series of most interesting sketches of the intimate lives of noteworthy people. The list is a long one and includes the ancient as well as the more modern musicians. The loves and liaisons are told in an easy and entertaining style, and prove the old adage that truth is more wonderful than fiction. There is material enough for hundreds of modern novels in the life histories of these people. Published in two volumes, handsomely bound in cloth and illustrated. L. C. Page & Co., Boston, price, $3.20.

WHY TAMMANY WON

The following statements credited to the New York Evening Post prior to the city elections, indicate in a measure, why a Tammany victory was possible:

"In an article presenting clearly conditions on the east side The Post gave a number of reasons why people whose interests would seem to require them to vote for Low might vote the other way. Taking a quarter of the city which polls 28,000 votes, it printed an interview with 'one of the most observant and philosophic officers of a Jewish institution which deals directly with the people.' This official said: You want plain facts. Well, first, the people are not saying how they are going to vote.

Five thousand families are represented by the push cart peddlers. They feel that the enforcement of the law keeping them to one side of the street is oppression. You know as well as I whether some would not rather pay something to be allowed to go on the opposite side of the street. Streets are kept clean, and garbage is removed and utilized so as to yield a profit to the city. Yes, but every janitor is against the administration which makes him do more work. Tenements are inspected. The health of the quarter is much better. But the tenement people do not comprehend what is being done for them. They are occupied with the hardship of not being allowed to put things on the fire escapes.

New tenements are better and lighter under the improved laws, but the rents are higher, and landlords are telling the poor voters that that is what reform means—higher rents. We have new parks and many new bath houses. These make voters among people actively interested in civic betterment. Do you think they make voters among ordinary unintelligent citizens such as the east side is largely composed of? Parks do not make voters for an administration here. Neither do public baths or comfort stations. Five million inspections by the health board might help the opposition if conducted about election time.

All these benefits you mention "are for the future. They are great and will be appreciated finally, but not yet.

"Probably no one on the east side is more unpartisan," says the Post, "or comes in daily contact with more east side people than the man quoted. Additional instances are given. There is a dairyman who said that he did not know how he was going to vote, but that he considered it hard that fusionists had not been around to pay for the window their banner broke when it blew down.

A small grocer who worked for Low last time says he is going to do what he can for Tammany this year because after he'd helped to put Low in the first thing that happened to him was that Low's inspectors had him arrested for selling adulterated milk.

NASAL CATARRH.

It is surprising what relief is afforded by Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol to those troubled with nasal catarrh and kindred affections. So many people suffer from it at this time when fall is giving way to winter. A neglected cold in the head paves the way to endless trouble in future years. Sulpho-Naphthol should be used at once as a spray or by snuffing. It affords instant relief in cases of nasal catarrh and at once arrests and prevents the development of cold in the head into this dread disease.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

Boston Music Hall.—The attraction announced at the Boston Music Hall, on Monday afternoon of next week, is Theodore Kremer's most thrilling melodramatic success, "Wedded and Parted," which has been pronounced to be one of the most entertaining offerings this well-known dramatic author has ever written. It is presented under the management of Sullivan, Harris and Woods, under whose direction so many of Mr. Kremer's writings have been produced, and they have given the piece a most elaborate mounting. The engagement is for a single week only with the usual matinees daily, beginning on Monday afternoon.

Keith's Theatre.—There will be an entire change of program at Keith's for the week of Nov. 16, when the bill is to be an "all variety" one, with at least one famous foreign act. The four Wellsons are ring performers and in New York they created quite a furor by their wonderful feats. The Marvellous Merrills, bicycle experts; Bean and Hamilton, barrel jumpers, and Ozav and Delmo, novelty jugglers, are others in the "sight act" department whose contributions will prove interesting; Cole and Johnson, the leading colored entertainers; Jules and Ella Garrison, in amusing burlesque of drama and tragedy; R. J. Jose, the favorite ballad singer, and John Kernell, Irish dialect comedian and parody singer, are too well known to need extended notice.

Columbia Theatre.—"Nothing neater, daintier, sweeter than Winsome Winnie on the stage today" is the claim made by the producers of this week's attraction at the Columbia theatre, Boston, and Miss Paula Edwards and her merry company of 100 singers and comedians are fully living up to the claim. Tunesful, melodious, full to the brim with funny quips and pretty girls, it abounds in those peculiar properties which make an up-to-date production successful. A superb male chorus and pretty girls galore complete the success of this delightful offering. Matinees are given Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Columbia.

Globe Theatre.—Mr. Charles Richman and his excellent company in Victor Mapes' great American play "Captain Barrington" still holds the boards at the Globe theatre. The fifth week of the engagement began last Monday night, and the theatre was crowded from pit to dome. The advance sales are heavier now than at any time since the run began, which ensures large audiences during the remainder of the engagement. Enthusiasm runs riot at every performance of "Captain Barrington" during several of the incidents, more particularly those of a patriotic nature. There are only a few more opportunities to see Mr. Richman in Victor Mapes' notably successful play and performances are given every evening at 8 and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2.15.

Blanche Bates in "The Darling of the Gods" at Tremont Theatre.

Hollis Street Theatre.—Beginning next Monday evening and continuing for two weeks the stage of the Hollis Street Theatre is to be occupied by the foremost of American comedians, Mr. N. C. Goodwin, who, under the direction of Klaw and Erlanger, is to present a superb revival of that most interesting of the Shakespearean comedies, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." It is eight years since this delightful work of the immortal bard has been presented in Boston, the last production being that made by the late Augustin Daly. But neither in Boston nor in any other city in the world has this fairy dream been given anything like the superb production which these fearless and enterprising gentlemen have given it in this instance. The company is a very large one, numbering in its entirety more than two hundred people. Matinees will be given the first week of the engagement, on Wednesday and on Saturday, and the second week on Thanksgiving Day and on Saturday. Seats are now selling for the entire engagement.

Majestic Theatre.—There can be no question but that "The Earl of Pawtucket" has taken a strong hold on the affections of Boston theatregoers, and that the crowded and delighted audiences that attend every performance indicate very strongly the play could remain at the Majestic for an indefinite period. It is safe to say "The Earl of Pawtucket" with Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay and the excellent company nightly pleases many people, and that each week aggregates audiences well up into thousands. Mr. Augustus Thomas has written a play in this comedy with dialogue crisp and bright, the situations and complications natural and logical, and the entire ensemble of such a wholesome character permeated with an atmosphere of cleanliness and wholesome fun, thus presenting a series of delightful pictures.

Grand Opera House.—"Alphonse and Gaston," the latest and most up-to-date musical farce-comedy of the season, is next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House, Boston. It is founded on the cartoon pictures of the volatile and ultra polite Frenchman whom F. Opper has made so famous in the Sunday papers and much comedy has been inserted in the reconstructed version of this season. It was conceived and staged by the Powers Brothers while in Paris and made an instantaneous hit. There is a triple bicycle comedy act which is a feature that is all the more laughable for being made a real incident in the mal adventures of Alphonse and Gaston. Among the song numbers presented are the catchy musical successes, "The Maiden with the Touching Sigh," "Minnehaha," "Sammy," Congo

Love Song," "Our Director," "Sunshine Sue," and "Sunny Africa."

Hub Theatre.—Lincoln J. Carter's latest melodramatic treat, "Too Proud to Beg," will be the attraction at the Hub theatre next week, starting with the matinee on Monday afternoon. This is said to be one of the most effective and interesting of the new plays that have been sent on the road this season, and flattering notices have been received wherever the play has been presented. The story is said to be consistent, interesting at all times and full of strong emotional action, deep heart interest, with bright lines of comedy, keen wit and satire that find their way into the affections of the audiences. The play is finely mounted, a carload of special scenery being carried for the production. Daily matinees will be given.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Those who accustom themselves to look facts squarely in the face see things just now which are not comforting.

During the past eight years things have gone up hill with a boom and a shout. Money has been made rapidly and the increase in the cost of living has not been much felt. Wages have followed the upward trend of things, until they now are at the highest point for a score of years. Speculation has flourished, Colonel Sellers has had many followers, and trusts, and many other things that aspired to be trusts, have sprung up like mushrooms.

Everything looked bright and beautiful, and then came a change. Water began to run out of the trust securities in streams. Labor began to demand impossible things, and enterprises have halted on every hand. Demand has slackened for many kinds of goods and prices have begun to give way. Capital begins to get skittish and gets out of sight.

There is nothing in sight to cause alarm, or to indicate that anything serious is going to happen. But next year there is a presidential election, and it behooves all business men to be watchful.

If the labor situation can be adjusted so that the enterprises that have been stopped can be resumed, there will probably be no serious reaction. Good sense would seem to demand that this be done, and sometimes good sense wins out. [The Box Maker.]

Mrs. Emilie Grant-Wilkinson, organist at Tremont Temple, and recently of Berlin, Germany, will receive pupils on the piano and organ at her residence, 35 Jewett street, Newton.

THE PICKARD LETTERS

Interesting Notes of Foreign Travel—Edinburgh, the Most Picturesque City in the World—The Home of Sir Walter Scott—Melrose Abbey, Etc.

Another excursion we all made through the estate of Lord Roseberg north of the city, permission having been kindly given by his Lordship's representative. The estate is very extensive, thousands of acres on each side of the road for miles it seemed. The drive through the grounds in which is his palace, and past his residence and out of the premises on the north, is very delightful, the road winding through woods apparently primeval. Our drive northward ended at the "Forth Bridge." It is a marvelous bridge, one of the wonders of the world. We walked out to the end of a pier which is a little above the bridge and from which a small steamer carries excursionists who wish to get a good view of the bridge. The captain refused to take out a party as small as ours and we were unable to estimate adequately the height of the structure and the breadth of the spans. Our guesses were far from correct. We largely underestimated. A steamer ride being obstinately refused us, we returned at one to the city.

We were unable to "see Melrose aught" because we could not go by night and get the effect of the "pale moonlight," but we did the best we could, and took a day for Melrose, Dryburgh and Abbotsford. One of our party had preceded us to visit a friend living on the way, but met us duly as we followed later. We stopped first at Abbotsford. It was a pleasure great indeed to have satisfied a desire long cherished to see the palatial mansion Scott built for himself and occupied till called to mansions above. Sir Walter Scott purchased in 1811 a small farmhouse and land adjoining, now the site of the "baronial pile." Washington Irving visited Scott in 1817 and found him residing in a "cottage," along side of which the mansion was rising. (Do not fail to read Irving's "Abbotsford" in his "Crayon Miscellany.") He gives a charming account of Scott's home life in the cottage at the time of his visit. Bit by bit rose the splendid mansion into which were incorporated various morsels from the ruins of Melrose Abbey. At the same time as funds came from his writings, he added more and more land until his estate became 1200 acres in extent. Abbotsford is perhaps the grandest house erected by a literary man and still in the possession of his descendants. We can easily believe that the building of this house and creation of the estate afforded Scott the greatest pleasure in his life. When crushed by the failure of his partners in 1826 he clung to Abbotsford with fond affection. Fortunately he was enabled to live there till his death in 1832. The story of his life and labors during those six years in which, by his pen, and probably at the cost of his life, he paid off the huge debt that fell upon him, is well known. Scott showed exquisite taste in the decoration of Abbotsford. An enthusiastic antiquarian, he enriched it with priceless treasures, almost all of which he collected during his rambles at home and abroad. The armory is one of the very finest. In every nook inside and outside is some bit of antiquity. Everything in his study, in his library, in the hall, everywhere, shows his intense love for the place. When financially ruined, he called it his "Delilah." From 1811 to 1832 all the works he published were written here, or at his residence, 39 Castle street, Edinburgh. Prior to 1811 he had written "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," "Marmion," and "The Lady of the Lake."

With souls not untouched by the genius loci, we made our way from Abbotsford to Melrose Abbey, revelling in our hearts thoughts of the Master. Indeed he was with us and we communed with him by the way. Scott is to all this region what Shakespeare is to Stratford. The Abbey appealed to Scott's poetic nature and stirred poetic feelings. To it he was enthusiastically attached by his early associations. To Irving he said: "There is no telling what treasures are hid in that glorious old pile. It is a fine place for antiquarian plunder; there such rich bits of old-time sculpture for the architect and old-time story for the poet. There is as rare picking in it as in a Stilton cheese, and in the same taste—the mouldier the better."

Destroyed, rebuilt, partially burned, wrecked by order of Henry VIII, not repaired since, but used as a quarry, the abbey is now a complete ruin. Still it is not wholly dilapidated. Enough stands to suggest the whole. Scott, in Canto II of the Lay of the Last Minstrel has most faithfully described the cloisters, the chancel and the east side. In the cloisters our attention was called to the beautiful carvings of leaves and flowers in cut stone, exquisitely delicate, and still in spite of time, as fresh as if just chiseled and rivaling the real objects of which they are imitations. "Nor herb nor flower gladden there. But was carved in the cloisters' arches fair."

We saw the reputed grave of the reputed wizard Michael Scott, who by a word "clef Eildon Hills in three," and bridled the Tweed with a curb of stone. [The Eildons are not far away. A Border legend is that the famous King Arthur and his warriors lie asleep in Eildon's cavern vast awaiting a bugle blast which shall awaken them.] Arthur will then arise, lead the British to victory and ensure a glorious empire.] The heart of King Robert Bruce brought from Spain in a silver case, was buried under the high altar of the Abbey. I found the Abbey to be the burial place of the Pringills, the ancestors of our townsman. In the south aisle against the south wall are the ruined partition walls of some small stalls. In one, by removing with my foot the accumulated dust from a memorial slab, I read the name of Ker; in another the Scotts of Gala; in a third the Pringills of Gala shields, the slabs dated 1585 and 1589.

In the burial ground outside the abbey near the south wall are some interesting epitaphs. Here is one:

"The earth on the earth Glistening like gold.
The earth goes to the earth.
Sooner than it would.
The earth builds on the earth
Castles and towers,
The earth says to the earth
All shall be ours."

In this yard is the tomb of Sir David Brewster, the distinguished writer on Optics. His epitaph is appropriate, "The Lord is my Light." From the churchyard we had an excellent view of the Abbey. Near it are too many modern buildings. Kemp's biographer says Kemp who designed Scott's monument in Edinburgh took its details from this abbey.

Scott was beside us still as we went to Dryburgh Abbey. This was founded in 1150 and dedicated, like Melrose, to the Virgin Mary. Portions of it are of later date, probably 200 years later. Its fate has been similar to that of Melrose; finally wrecked in 1545 and after the Reformation neglected and converted into a quarry. It is more fortunate than Melrose Abbey in being much more sequestered and not having about it other buildings to detract from its impressive beauty. We wandered around and around the ruins rich in Gothic antiquities, but we hardly knew what to admire most, the northern elevation of the north transept, which, when entire must have been of wonderful beauty, or ivy-mantled gables with St. Catherine windows. What remained of the former is a lovely pointed window at the east end, the only survivor of the "Three Graces" which once adorned this part of the edifice. Let me quote a few appropriate paragraphs concerning Dryburgh. "The scene is one of the finest in Scotland for water, hill and forest. The gray ruins rise from a screen of woods sufficient to show their picturesque-ness, without altogether exposing this rugged desolation. Ruins are best seen in such surroundings. Natural beauty substituted for artificial symmetry which has been ravaged by time and violence."

Scott as heir of the Habburtons, acquired a burying place in this Abbey. His tomb is in St. Mary's Chapel, and simple epitaphs record the death of his wife, of himself, of his eldest son Walter, second baronet, and of his son-in-law Lockhart. Dr. Joseph, an eminent antiquary, says that the lines of the 13th century are written on those fine arches of the Lady Aisle or north transept beneath which sleep the earthly remains of Scott, surrounded by the dust of many a white canon and many a Border Knight, amid the ashes of his own rough clan, in the heart of the scenes he sang and of the valley he loved so well. The abbey is no longer a quarry, but is carefully preserved by its present proprietor.

Newly come from the New World and its prairie farms with which we are fairly well acquainted, we could but notice the cultivated fields that here and there lie along the lines of our excursion from Edinburgh. Those north of the city are now most clearly in mind, as we noticed those and carefully stopping by the roadside for examination. The fields are large for Scotland would be so in New England) and beautiful with thorough culture. They yield heavy crops of oats and barley and wheat and hay. The harvest is not quite over. The fields are thickly studded with shocks where these have not been stacked. Where the grain has not been cut, we have seen women with men at work cutting and binding. The farmers in some places have "reapers" of American make, mostly small, and they use them where the grain stands well. Rains, however, have "lodged" many acres and sickles are put to use. How clean the garnering! Not a straw wasted, not a kernel left for birds to pick up. Rent is high, $20 an acre, we were told near the city. Everything must be saved and find a good market.

Great care is taken in stacking. It pleases the eye to look upon such work, perfect in its kind. Every bundle is made "right and tight with thack and rape." Every stack is a masterpiece of the farmer's art—so trim and sleek and symmetrical—so aristocratic! The landlord fares well, but often remits a part of the rent.

Mrs. Alice May, for years resident on the continent of Europe and a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music at London, will give lessons in French and German (conversation and theory) and pianoforte for beginners. A specially made, of children. Address, 11 Meredith avenue, Newton Highlands. 13t

Reynolds-Morgan.

Miss May F. Morgan, daughter of Postmaster George H. Morgan, and Edwin Reynolds, of Cohasset, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Reynolds of Brockton, were married at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents at 58 Everett street, Newton Centre. The Rev. Morgan Millar of the Newton Centre Unitarian church performed the ceremony. A short informal reception followed.

Swedenborg Defended.

REV. DR. GODDARD REPLIES TO MRS. METCALF.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

Dear Sir:—Having observed Mrs. Metcalf's rejoinder to my letter of last month and sorry that I failed to make my reasoning clear I will ask your indulgence once more confining myself chiefly to a reply to her contention that the followers of Swedenborg are not followers of the Bible but of Swedenborg's interpretation of it thus following him as an authority instead of the authority of the Scripture itself. And that a person cannot follow both.

It is quite true that Swedenborg has enabled us to read the Scripture in a different manner than we should have read it otherwise but not true that we have substituted his interpretation for the Scripture itself. He has simply enabled us to see for ourselves what the Bible really teaches. He has added nothing to it nor taken anything from it. He was a prepared messenger to answer the prayer of the devout soul; "Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."

The logic of Mrs. Metcalf would lead to the conclusion that the Bible needs no interpreter. Why then the prayer of the Psalmist above quoted? Why the statement of our Lord that He had spoken unto His disciples in parables but would sometime show them plainly? Why did He find it necessary to open His disciples understanding that they might understand the Scriptures and show them in Moses, prophets and psalms things concerning Himself? Why did Paul say that the story of Abraham, Ishmael and Isaac and Sarah and Hagar was an allegory, needing an interpretation, which he gives? Why does the psalmist say that the story of Israel was a "parable," a "dark saying of old?" Why did all the chief writers upon Scripture of the early Christian ages following the Master's method interpret the Scripture, each in his own way with a constant reference to an internal meaning? And why did this practice continue in some degree even down to the time of Martin Luther?

But apart from allegorical or spiritual interpretation is it not true that all Christian bodies or nearly all are accustomed to read the Bible in the light of some one's interpretation? Hence the creeds and the divisions in the church. The religious sects all follow what Swedenborg states as a law: "The Word without doctrine cannot be understood."

The Bible needs the interpretation of true spiritual science as much as nature's appearances need the interpretation of true natural science. But for the latter the sun would in human belief be still whirling around the earth; and but for the former the believers in the Bible must still believe in an angry and changeable God. But with the interpretation which we believe Swedenborg has revealed by Divine help the Bible remains still the mind of God, as nature, despite its appearances, remains His handiwork.

And yet let me add that we do not accept Swedenborg's statement on any blind authority but only because we recognize it as true and good and uplifting, humanizing and heavenly. His words appeal in different ways to different states of mind. His central teaching (that respecting the Savior) has touched the highest realm of the soul of not a few with an irresistible and glorious conviction.

Finally, Mrs. Metcalf traces a contradiction, as she supposes, between the statements of certain Swedenborgian writers to the effect that the Bible in its letter meets with the protest of human rationality, and that the literal sense must be perforated before the spirit, can appear—a contradiction between these and my statement that the whole teaching of Swedenborg can be found in the Bible's plain sense. But the writers above quoted are speaking of those parts of the literal sense which are an adaptation to the ignorance, barbarism and cruelty of the ages past, and not those parts through which the soul of heaven shines, as the soul of a loving friend shines through his face. It is in these transparent or translucent portions that we read the real truths of heaven.

And so it is, that Swedenborg appeals to the Scripture as the only authority, and asks of us to compare what he says with the Divine book; and moreover, that unless truth thus taught by him, is seen to be also taught by the Lord in His Word, it can have no spiritualizing power within the human soul.

I am sincerely yours,
John Goddard.

THIRTY YEARS.

Mayor Weeks Briefly Outlines City's Growth.

Conditions Now and Thirty Years Ago Compared.

Mayor Weeks published the following statement in the recent Anniversary number of the Boston Globe in a symposium to which the Mayors of Greater Boston contributed:

You have asked me to write briefly of the progress made by the city of Newton during the past 30 years. In the space allotted me I cannot better describe the advancement of the city in a material way than by first giving its condition today and then comparing the statistics with those of 30 years ago. As Newton adopted its first city charter in 1874, the period which you ask me to consider practically covers the life of the city.

As is well known, Newton is almost strictly a residential city, there being but three villages devoted in any way to manufacturing interests. It is a community peculiar to itself in that it has no congested section, being made up of 15 comparatively small villages, each with its own center, containing churches, schools, clubs, stores, etc.

This scattered condition is the reason for Newton's great street, water and sewer mileage. It has 199 miles of streets, of which 138 miles are accepted. The accepted streets all come under the head of paved streets and in this respect, at least, Newton leads all the cities of its class in the United States. Indeed, there are but three cities in the United States having less than 100,000 people which have more miles of paved streets. Almost the same comparative conditions obtain relative to the city's sewer system, which now aggregates more than 90 miles, or nearly twice as much as any city in the United States having a similar population.

Newton has, and is maintaining its schools at an unusually high standard. This refers to the quality of the buildings, the maintenance of the buildings and also of the maintenance of the schools. Its appropriation for school purposes this year is nearly $225,000, which is more than $38 for every child attending the schools, and with two instances is the highest per capita appropriation in the United States. Not only is the appropriation large, but the city has an unusually large school population in proportion to its size, there being more than 6000 scholars enrolled; of these 840 are in the high school, this being very much the highest number in any similar city in the United States.

It is worthy of note that the high school graduating class of 1903 contained 126 members, of which number 94 entered college or normal schools. So carefully were the high school scholars fitted that not in a single instance was a candidate for entrance to a higher institution rejected where the candidate had been recommended by the school authorities as prepared, and no instance has been brought to my attention in which there was any rejection whether the candidate was recommended as fitted or not.

The city has added to its school property in new buildings during the past seven years about $800,000 and it is building school buildings which in the opinion of experts are models.

It has the same reason to take pride in the character of its water works, and it has 126 miles of water mains. Indeed, it can be truthfully stated that all the municipal departments are maintained at a very high standard, which naturally requires larger expenditures and a comparatively high valuation and tax rate. This valuation per capita is one of the highest in the United States, and the tax rate, $16.80 about the average of Massachusetts cities and towns.

Nothing shows the wonderful strides of the metropolitan district more graphically than comparing all of this with conditions 30 years ago when the city contained a population of 12,825. Then it had no water system; since, there has been expended for that purpose $2,197,000. Then it had no sewerage system; since, there has been expended $1,250,000. There was not a foot of paved streets in 1873; now, as has been stated, the city has 138 miles, and all other municipal improvements have been perfected in a similar manner.

Newton's citizenship is of such high character that it demands that a standard similar to the present be maintained as a future policy, and with the growth of Boston I see no reason why Newton will not continue the progress which it has made during the past 30 years for at least 30 years more. Certainly this growth can be accomplished without the same rate of expenditure in municipal affairs as with a population of 100,000 it would require practically five more miles of water mains, sewers, streets, etc., and comparatively few additional expenditures in other departments, so that we may expect, provided practical economy is used in municipal affairs, a decreasing tax rate, accompanied by the best possible municipal conditions.

Newton Upper Falls, Nov. 6, 1903. To the Editor of the Newton Graphic: I desire to express through your paper my appreciation of the efficiency of the Newton Fire Department and the Police Service and thank them for the promptness with which they responded to the call from box 616 at 4 a. m. on the 6th inst.

While the second round of the alarm was sounding Hose 7 arrived, followed in a few minutes by the other companies; five policemen were also in readiness for any emergency, showing excellent service in these departments.

Very Respectfully,
Lewis P. Everett.

At the Churches.

The last lecture in the course of illustrated lectures given in the Central church, Newtonville, by the Rev. O. S. Davis will be next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Subject, "Legends of the Rhine, and the Hartz Mountains."

The Thanksgiving meeting of the young people's society will be held next Sunday evening at the Immanuel Baptist church, Newton. Miss Marion E. Brown will be in charge.

A cake and candy sale under the direction of the King's Daughters will be held in the parlors of the Central church, Newtonville, Wednesday, Nov. 25th.

The regular meeting of the Stebbins' Alliance will be held next Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the Unitarian church, Newton Centre. A special program is being prepared.

The Ladies' Aid Society connected with the Church of the Messiah will meet next Monday afternoon with Mrs. V. D. Baldwin on Lexington street, Auburndale.

The annual Thanksgiving sale will take place in the parlors of the Newton Centre Unitarian church, Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5.

Rev. O. S. Davis and Messrs. A. D. Auryansen, W. S. Slocum, W. C. Boyden and W. W. Palmer represented Central church at the Union Conference held yesterday at Park Street church, Boston.

The Ladies' Aid Society held a food and candy sale yesterday afternoon and last evening in the vestry of the Newtonville Methodist church. A special feature of the sale was the Japanese tea room where refreshments were served.

The first all day meeting of the Charity Square for the season was held Wednesday at Central church, Newtonville. Basket lunch was served at noon.

The Freedman's Aid Society of Eliot church held a meeting Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. John L. Bailey on Jewett street.

A meeting of the primary Sunday school teachers of the Norumbega district was held Saturday afternoon at the Newtonville Methodist church. Miss Stock, the state primary secretary was the guest and speaker.

The next in the series of sewing meetings which are being held by the ladies of the New Church, Newtonville, will be at Mrs. John Goddard's on Brookside avenue, Thursday, Dec. 3d.

At a recent meeting of the corporation of the First Baptist church, West Newton, Mr. Herbert A. Pike of Winthrop street was elected treasurer in place of the late Mr. Wm. H. Leatherdee.

Mr. Wm. P. Lowry has been elected president of the C. E. society at North church, Nonantum.

Eliot church vespers at 4.30 are attracting many people who enjoy fine music.

Among Women.

The regular meeting of the West Newton Educational Club will be held in the parlors of the Unitarian church on Friday, Nov. 27, at 2.30 p. m. Meeting in charge of special committee, Mrs. Walton, chairman. Speaker, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore of Melrose, Mass. Subject, "Superfluous Women." This will be an open meeting and it is earnestly desired that each member be present with guests. Admission free.

Last week Wednesday the Women's Educational and Industrial Union gave its first reception of the season in the Nerkins hall, Boston. A large number of members and guests was present and dancing occupied part of the evening. The Union employees gave several choruses illustrating well-known advertisements and fine music added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mrs. F. D. Sampson of Newton was one of the tubers and Miss Boyle O'Reilly, daughter of the late John O'Reilly, presided at the tea table.

The West Newton Women's Educational Club is forming classes for the members in current events and art and literature.

Mrs. Emilie Grant-Wilkinson, organist at Tremont Temple, and recently of Berlin, Germany, will receive pupils on the piano and organ at her residence, 35 Jewett street, Newton.

Democratic Caucus.

124 ballots were cast at the Democratic caucuses last Tuesday evening, all but one of which were for the nomination of ex-President Henry Bailey of Newton Centre for mayor, although 58 ballots from Wards 1, 4, 6 and 7 spelled the name as Bailey.

The vote and nominations were as follows:

WARD ONE.

30 ballots. Ward alderman, William P. Sweeney. Ward Committee, H. J. Murnaghan, John Murphy, W. F. Sweeney, E. F. Murphy, J. T. Joyce, Wm. Doherty.

WARD TWO.

Citizens' Party.

The Citizens' party, which has been quiescent for a number of years intends to enter the mayoralty field this year and held a mass caucus at Temple Hall, Newtonville, last Monday evening. The former manager of its affairs, Mr. William J. Follett, was the presiding genius and under his guidance the wheels of the party moved as smoothly as of yore.

Mr. Frank C. Sheridan was secretary and ex-Alderman Henry Bailey was the unanimous choice of the 60 or more persons who were present. A committee consisting of John H. Grace, Ward 1, Anthony G. Sullivan of Ward 2; Frank C. Sheridan of Ward 3; David H. Warren of Ward 4; William Kennefic of Ward 5; George H. Ellis of Ward 6 and William J. Follett of Ward 7 were chosen to select the remainder of the ticket. Chairman Follett's speech was to the effect that the people of the city were being muzzled at the party caucuses, and that the entire municipal ticket was made up by the ward and city committee and rushed through regardless of the wishes of the people.

City Hall Notes.

The engineering department of the city of Newton has just completed the difficult task of boring beneath the Cochituate aqueduct for the purpose of connecting the sewage system of the north side of the city with that of Newton Highlands and Eliot on the south side. The work was accomplished without disaster, although there was constant danger of the monster water pipes giving way. The work was done by means of iron shields, fitted tightly within each other placed to keep the aqueduct from settling when the work of tunneling beneath it was reached. Slowly but surely these were forced beneath the water pipe by the pressure of huge jacks. The work was carried on night and day and as fast as the shields were pushed beyond the water pipe, the water and mud were cleared away and brick, cement and concrete laid within them. Beneath the main sewer tubing a sub-drain twelve inches in diameter was constructed.

Mr. J. C. Ivy, a recent democratic candidate for representative to the General Court, takes exception to the criticisms of the Graphic editorial of Nov. 6, regarding his statements at a political rally, about the street railway situation in this city. His article published in a contemporary newspaper, although the columns of the Graphic are always open to signed communications, contains such unfounded and malicious insinuations, that a reply is demanded.

An apology is due Mr. Ivy in the first place for the statement that he was a member of the Street Railway Committee during his aldermanic service. Although a prominent member of the boards of 1898-99, Alderman Ivy did not serve upon this important committee.

Mr. Ivy is also technically true in the assertion "that the Suburban Street Railway Trust or Syndicate now in existence was not before the board for consideration in either of those years." And possibly the same will apply to the words "that said trust was not during either of those years, the unanimous desire of that board and committee." In the sense that the particular form of organization now held by the Boston Suburban Electric Co. was considered or desired by the board of aldermen of those years, these statements of Mr. Ivy may be true, but the fact is that a consolidation of the then separately managed street railway companies into a centrally controlled organization was the constant aim of the street railway committees, since 1898, and this desire was generally known and approved by the remainder of the board. This consolidation has been effected, the conflicting street railway interests have been harmonized and the resulting public benefits are a strong tribute to the good work of ex-President Henry Baily and his associates on that committee.

Mr. Ivy also believes that "the city of Newton gave rights and franchises to the several street railways in its territory aggregating in value at least three million dollars without receiving an equivalent for the same." Such a statement is a serious reflection upon the integrity and business ability of the various aldermen by whom those franchises were granted and if the records are correct reflects just as severely upon Mr. Ivy himself as at least one valuable franchise was granted during his term of office.
The public of Newton have received and are still receiving an equivalent for the street railway franchises in the splendid service, handsome cars and superior equipment of the consolidated companies.

The statement "that the city has built magnificent streets at the taxpayers' expense for the 'merger' to operate its railways in" is on a par with the rest of the article, and while it might be used as a vote catcher just before election, will not bear careful investigation. It undoubtedly refers to Commonwealth avenue and to the widening of Washington street. Commonwealth avenue was first outlined by Hon. J. R. Leeson, and Messrs. E.
B. Haskell and E. W. Converse, gentlemen whose public spirit is unquestioned. Private citizens gave large amounts of land and money, and enterprising men invested money in a model street railway, when there was not a house on the avenue. Such a history does not bear many marks of a deep laid plot to bleed the public for the benefit of a subsequently formed street railway merger.

It will also take more than Mr.
Ivy's statement to convince the average citizen that Washington street was widened for the sole benefit of street railways, when the congestion of traffic, the tragic death of Fire Chief Bixby and the problem of the abolition of the grade crossings are considered.

Mr. Ivy criticizes the position of the Graphic in the recent contest between a Waltham and a Newton company for a location at Waban. The Graphic supported the Newton company in a very general sort of way, on the ground that the propositions made by that company, although not so pretentious as those of its competitor, would be fulfilled. Subsequent events have proved that the opposition company was not a stable organization and that its promises to a neighboring city were valueless.

Mr. Ivy states that our large interest and sinking fund charges were entailed principally for the boulevard systems, called for by the street railway traffic. An analysis of these figures shows the gross debt of the city at about $6,300,000 of which about $1,000,000 was for Washington street and $515,000 for Commonwealth avenue. The former item includes the city's share of 10 per cent. of the cost of abolishing grade crossings, some $250,000, and the public does not find much fault with that great improvement.

Commonwealth avenue has been proved to be so valuable an investment for the city that it is surprising to find even Mr. Ivy criticizing it at this late day. The increased taxes received on the higher valuations along this boulevard more than pay the annual sinking fund and interest charges. The city could well afford to build several boulevards like Commonwealth avenue.

Mr. Ivy claims that the street railway companies which used to pay a profit when carrying one-half their capacity, should now share with the public in the shape of a reduced fare, the greatly increased profit coming from a utilization of 4-5 of its carrying capacity.

Mr. Ivy's statement should be met with figures and a comparison of street railway returns of 1893 and 1902 will bear on this point.

Only the Newton and Newton & Boston companies were in operation in 1893 and at that time the operating expenses of the Newton company were 66 per cent. of its earnings, and it paid 8 per cent. dividend. In 1902, the Newton company paid but 6 per cent. dividends and its operating expenses were 70.89 of its earnings.
The Newton & Boston Company never paid a dividend in its existence and in 1902 had a deficit of $27,473.71. In 1902 the Commonwealth avenue Co.
had a deficit of $8,340.41 after paying a dividend of 4 1-2 per cent. and the Wellesley & Boston had a deficit of $489.07 after 8 per cent. dividends had been paid. The six companies of the Boston Suburban Electric Company in 1902 paid a total dividend of 28.95 per cent. or an average of less than 5 per cent. on the capital invested. No business man would reduce prices on such a condition as this. The above figures are taken from the Railroad Commissioners' reports.

The Graphic is not the official organ of any corporation or the street railway companies and indeed is not considered even friendly, by the street railway directors. It has no "money relations or their equivalent with the merger or syndicate or trust," as Mr.
Ivy insinuates, and knows nothing of the internal workings of that organization. It does know, however, that the public of Newton are receiving far better street railway service than any other city in the country outside of Boston, and will uphold the consolidated companies as long as they continue to serve the best interests of the city.

John C. Brimblecom.

The municipal campaign is now on in dead earnest, with President A. R.
Weed of the board of Aldermen as the Republican candidate, and ex-President Henry Baily as the Citizens' and Democratic nominee.

Either of these gentlemen will make a creditable mayor of the city, and both have that intimate acquaintance with the city's needs which comes from long and faithful service at City Hall.

The chief difference between them comes in the character of their support throughout the city and in this respect, Alderman Weed has by far the advantage. All the best elements in the city are lined up in his behalf and when elected he will enter the office with the knowledge that his friends will only demand that he serve the best interests of the city. On the other hand, while Mr. Baily is personally as clean a gentleman as Mr.
Weed, his support is the same as that which voted for William H. Baker during his recent candidacies, and represents not the best, but the dissatisfied and discordant element whose influence in case Mr. Baily is by any possibility elected, will be prejudicial to the city.

It is practically the state election over again with a personally good candidate at the head of an undesirable following and an equally good candidate supported by the best elements of the city. There can be but one outcome of such a contest if the Republicans rally to their candidate.
Mr. Weed is clean, honest, able and unpledged and will give the city that careful, conservative administration which it needs.

Mr. Baily's political record is far from satisfactory to many. In 1900 after accepting the Democratic nomination for mayor he withdrew from the ticket, leaving that party in a bad predicament. In 1901 he ran for the office as an independent, when his candidacy endangered the success of good government, and received less than 500 votes. His sole chance for winning this year is Republican apathy, a condition which Mr. Weed's friends do not intend to allow to on Dec. 8th.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

Hospital Sunday has become a fix-ture for the Thanksgiving festival in this city and the appeal of the Hospital Trustees usually falls on willing ears. A careful review of the hospital work among the poor, the expense of which is met by these Thanksgiving contributions, shows that there is a deficit of about $2800, which should be met by an increase in donations next Sunday.

The statement of the Executive Committee, which we print in full this week outlines a plan for increasing the usefulness of the Hospital and it should be a matter of pride to all interested to see to it that not only the deficit is made up next Sunday but the future plans shall receive that strong financial support which shall give the Hospital trustees new heart and greater faith in the beneficence of their work.

The idea of an informal reception for the parents and teachers in our public schools, similar to what was held recently in the Bigelow and Auburndale districts is well worth attention. It enables the parents and teachers to form that personal acquaintance which will smooth out many of the misunderstandings which are inevitable in school administration.
These receptions should become a fixture of the school year.

No one is better fitted to open the course of lectures on "Good Citizenship" under the auspices of the West Newton Women's Educational Club than Mayor Weeks. He practices what he preaches in this respect.

Unanimous Choice of Republicans for Mayor.White Wins Ward 5 Nomination
After a Hot Fight.

The Republican caucuses last Wednesday evening were, as usual, but slightly attended except in Ward 5.
President Weed was practically the unanimous choice for mayor, receiving 875 votes to 3 for Mr. Baily. For school committee in Ward 1, Mr.
Brackett led a walkover, receiving 701 votes to 97 for Mr. Caverly.

The Ward 5 contest for alderman at large between Alderman Walter Chesley and Mr. Thomas W. White was the feature of the day. Both sides put in all their work in Ward 5 and the caucus with 487 votes was the largest ever held. The polls were crowded with workers for both sides, and carriages and automobiles were busy in bringing voters to the ballot box. The caucus was kept open until 9 o'clock and the count was not finished until about 1 a. m. Chesley carried the ward by 69 votes but was defeated in the city by the small margin of 32 votes.

It is rumored that Mr. Chesley and Mr. Caverly will run independently.
The vote by wards was as follows:

	White	Chesley	Brackett	Caverly
Ward 1	70	41	92	26
2	45	27	66	9
3	60	40	97	4
4	47	18	54	4
5	202	271	266	26
6	15	42	51	1
7	59	27	75	22
Totals	498	466	701	97

The other nominees and their vote
are as follows:

For Alderman at large: Ward 1,
Charles E. Riley, 758; 2, Charles S.
Dennison, 788; 3, Benjamin S. Palmer, 777; 4, Peter C. Baker, 747; 6, Endicott P. Saltonstall, 759; 7,
Charles S. Eossign, 740.

For School Committee: Ward 2, Abbot Bassett, 731; 4, Fred E. Whiting, 734; 5, Lewis P. Everett, 775; 6,

For Ward Aldermen: Ward 1, William P. Sweeney, 82; 2, Charles D.
Cabot, 76; 3, Henry H. Hunt, 114;
4, Frederick Johnson, 64; 5, Frederic
W. Webster, 277; 6, Elias B. Bishop, 54; 7, Thomas Weston, Jr., 94.

The following persons were elected a ward and city committee: Ward 1—
F. W. Stone, Hugh Campbell, O. M.
Fisher, E. O. Childs, Paul Champagne; Ward 2—A. P. Carter, E. P.

The pall bearers were Hugh Murphahan, Owen Gallagher, Peter Flaherty, William Brosnahan, John Keating and James Dunn. The interment was at Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

Eighty Years Young.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ware Lane, for nearly fifty years a resident of Elmwood street, Newton, celebrated her 80th birthday last Tuesday by receiving about 400 of her friends at the Hunnewell Club. The assembly hall of the clubhouse, where the reception took place, was handsomely decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and smilax. Mrs. Lane was assisted in receiving by her daughters, Mrs. Alanson Bigelow of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Gardner O. North, Mrs. Fred A. Wetherbee of Newton and Mrs. Cyrus W. Heizer of Concord.

The refreshment tables were presided over by the grand-daughters of Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Alanson Bigelow, Jr., of Brookline, Mrs. Homer L. Bigelow of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. George Lane of Winthrop, Miss Dorothea Bigelow of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. George Lane, Jr., of Newton, Mrs. Frank C. Damsie of Concord and Miss Helen Heizer of Concord. They were assisted by Mrs. W. T. Coppins, Miss Carrie Coppins, Mrs. William Paxton, Miss Ethel Gilman, Mrs. George Angier, Miss Edith Byfield, Miss Alice Webber, Miss Beulah Bailey, Miss Florence Hills, Miss Priscilla Alden, Miss Lenora Soule and Mrs. Arthur Lothrop of Newton.

During the past week the gymnasium floor has been marked out for basket ball and the baskets placed in position. Two new medicine balls have been added to the equipment which now is complete in every respect. The first gymnasium test will be held Saturday Nov. 21, at 8 p. m.

A fine upholstered seat is being made for the reception room and portiere to match will be hung over the stairway entrance leading to the gymnasium above. These beautiful furnishings are the gift of the Ladies Auxiliary. On Nov. 21, at 3 p. m., they held a Thanksgiving food sale.

Men's meeting Sunday Nov. 22 at Y. M. C. A. hall. W. R. Hood will give the address.

Bowling League.

The bowling season for this league began last Wednesday night with contests at Maugus, Hunnewell and Riverside.

Maugus easily defeated Riverside three straight games. Travis, of Maugus, with a single of 222 and a total of 360 leading both teams.

At Hunnewell, the home team defeated North Gate two out of three. Wardwell, of Hunnewell, with a single of 198 and a total of 324 was high man.

At Riverside, Allston Golf won two from the boat club although the latter had the larger pin fall. Brooks, of Newton, had the best single, 243, and Kimball, of the same team, had a total of 535.

City Hall Notes.

A largely attended hearing was held Saturday evening before the license committee on the petition to transfer or revoke the junk licenses of the Gilix Bros. on Clifton street. The testimony was in the line of showing that the Gilix brothers worked Sundays and did not keep their premises looking neat. Many witnesses were heard for both sides and Judge W. F. Bacon appeared for the petitioners and H. L. Whitteley, Esq., for the Gilix Bros. The matter was taken under advisement by the committee.

HOSPITAL PLANS.

Important Changes Contemplated by Trustees.

New Officers Needed for Hospital Work.

In a recent issue of the Newton papers notice was taken of some new business discussed at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Newton Hospital. As the management of the Hospital feel that the changes in view will insure continued and increased efficiency, it is desired to give the proposed alterations as wide a hearing and reading as the importance of the work calls for. It is thought, therefore, that the present annual notice of the approaching Hospital Sunday affords a fitting opportunity to acquaint the public with the Hospital's plan.

A House Physician of record and ability is to be chosen. He will receive and prepare the patients for visits of the medical staff. His attentions and services when emergencies arise, we venture to say, will be appreciated by relations and friends at home. His studies in the pathological and bacteriological laboratories will be of great service to the physicians at work, and his quick understanding of physician's directions and advice, his assistance in the operating room, his help to keep good Hospital records, among many other medical matters, we feel sure will meet the satisfaction and satisfaction of all our people.

Another hopeful view is entertained by the Hospital in the securing of a competent accountant. Heretofore in our endeavor to economize to the last degree, it is felt that too much has been imposed upon those entrusted with the detailed work; and, while this same economizing in the use of money entrusted to us for this great charity will be carried out, it is expected with better division of work higher satisfaction will be reached, and the Board of Health, Overseers of the Poor, State Veterans, and all others will join in our endeavor to make this the crowning altruistic expression in Newton.

We think all this may add a little to the expense, while we strongly feel it will greatly add to the efficiency of the work done. It is but another step in the direction that was taken when the contagious buildings were erected, the brick wards built, up-to-date operating room and X-ray apparatus appeared, and which has been supported by the churches and all right-minded, public-spirited people.

It is the endeavor of the Executive and Finance Committees to so meet the wants and desires of our city in the matter of medical and surgical attention that the pleasurable enthusiasm of the workers in this vineyard may run from citizen to citizen, house to house, ward to ward, until from the least unit the greatest shall be but one heart and one mind in the enterprise, and that is to keep this Hospital where it has long sustained itself, at the front in cities of our size.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM O. HUNT,

What Have the People of Newton to be Thankful for?

To the Editor of the Graphic:

Just about this time of the year there are likely to appear in some of the public prints answers to the question: "What have you to be especially thankful for during the past year?" Some enterprising journals have sent the question around through the country to individuals who have loomed into prominence in one way and another. The answers have not always been very instructive, but sometimes they have been at least suggestive.

It has occurred to me that in case the question should be asked, this coming Thanksgiving time of any one of our Newton people he should surely include among his reasons for thankfulness the fact that he is living in a place where there is a thoroughly good Hospital. In order to appreciate what it is to live in a city where there is such an institution it is only necessary to be overcome by illness while staying somewhere where there is no Hospital.

A sick traveler in a hotel in a strange place has a hard time of it. A well appointed hospital looms up before the mind of such a man as a blessing indeed. It may be, however, that some of our comfortable, well-to-do people are saying that a Hospital may be just the place for a person who has not the facilities for being taken care of in his own home, but the doctors and the wise folk generally are telling us that for some forms of illness and for the treatment of accidents there is no place today like a Hospital.

It saves time and money and suffering to go there instead of being treated at home.

People who never expected to spend a night in such an institution have said after one experience: "If we are sick again or meet with accidents or have to undergo surgical operations send us there by all means." This is what some people are saying who live in very delightful homes, and they are right for a well equipped, well managed Hospital like ours is just the place when these emergencies arise.

Then the advantages of such an institution become all the more evident when contagious diseases break out. It is often supposed that the only people benefited by the contagious departments of our Hospital are those stricken with disease and those in the dwelling with them. The fact is that all the residents in the vicinity are protected by the removal of the contagious cases, so that by preventing the spread of loathsome and dangerous diseases an indirect benefit is extended to scores of families who otherwise would be in peril.

The Hospital then, is a good thing if we consider simply the welfare of the well-to-do part of our population, but how it looms up as a public blessing when we consider the cases of those who are living in small houses, or who are unable to provide the comforts which sickness makes so desirable. While many go to the Hospital and pay their way there are more who can do but little financially.

Without saying anything now about the calls upon us to aid the poor on religious grounds, it is proper to refer to the economic principle that it is to the advantage of a community to keep its constituent elements in good working condition as far as possible. A sick man becomes a burden. Therefore it is good policy, according to this principle, to get him on his feet as quickly as possible so that he may add his part to the productive gain of the general body. There is no place where he is made to get well so quickly as at the Hospital under the intelligent care of physicians and nurses.

Perhaps it is hardly necessary to recite these advantages of an institution which has been doing its good work so long now in our city. And yet while all of us would be very ready to cite them if we met some antagonist who denied the usefulness of the Hospital, some of us may need to be reminded that we have an opportunity now to show our appreciation of the Hospital by assisting in its support. It needs now considerable money to keep it going. It could use many thousands of dollars. It should have a large endowment. Our wealthy citizens should give generously to it, and remember it also when they make their wills. But not only the wealthy are called upon to help. The appeal is made to every one. This Thanksgiving season to help roll up the $12,000 which are imperatively needed to meet the current expenses of the year.

When, then, any citizen of Newton tries to recall the reasons for being thankful, let him by all means admit that one is the fact that he is living in a place where there is a good Hospital. Let him try to add the other fact that he has done all he could to sustain it.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

Globe Theatre—This is the sixth and last week of Mr. Charles Richmond and company in Victor Mapes' beautiful, patriotic, love drama, at the Globe Theatre. Beginning Monday, Mr. William Collier, starring under the management of Weber and Fields, in "A Fool and His Money," will be the attraction. "A Fool and His Money," the comedy in which Mr. William Collier and his company is to appear next week is the most successful which has ever come from the pen of Geo. H. Broadhurst. His supporting company is the best; the play is splendidly mounted and is marked by the same lavishness and prodigality so conspicuous in all the Weber-Fields productions. Performances every evening at 8, and Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2.15.

Grand Opera House—The Thanksgiving attraction will be the Elinore Sisters in a farce comedy written expressly for them by William Jerome, entitled "Mrs. Delaney of Newport." The music was furnished by Jean Schwartz and the production was made under the personal supervision of James Gorman, who has been accorded much praise for his ability in this line of theatrical work. These character comedies have long been popular vaudeville headliners and they are an acquisition to the world of farce comedy stars that has been received with marked expressions of approval. The management has provided an adequate cast for the support of these clever comedians and the chorus of well trained voices present the many musical numbers in a most pleasing manner. Those wishing especially to attend the Thanksgiving performances, Thursday matinee or evening, should secure their seats well in advance.

Majestic Theatre—"The Earl of Pawtucket" has had a wonderful history. With the first performance the play and its star, Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay, scored a decided hit and continued an uninterrupted run of thirty-eight weeks, playing in three Broadway theatres during that time, and continuing throughout the summer. There never has been a dissenting opinion about the merits of the play, and it is conceded to be Mr. Augustus Thomas' masterpiece, which is saying a great deal about so versatile an artist. Seats are selling two weeks in advance. Matinees are given Wednesday and Saturday, and a special matinee will be given on Thanksgiving Day.

Boston Music Hall—An attraction of much moment, which is booked for the Boston Music Hall next week, is B. E. Forrester's superb production of Theodore Kremer's latest and most successful melodrama, "No Wedding Bells for Her." This new play, which is one of the best offerings of the season, is without doubt the best thing that Mr. Kremer has yet done. It is strong in plot, legitimately thrilling and exciting, and possesses a remarkably sustained interest. "No Wedding Bells for Her" is elaborately mounted, the scenery and effects being of the most beautiful and elaborate description.

Newtonville.

Hospital Sunday, Nov. 22.

—Rev. John Goddard of Brookside avenue returned the last of the week from Cincinnati, Ohio.

—Miss Nellie Tancred of Otis street has entered the Allen gymnasium, Boston, for a three-year course.

—Daniels & Howlett Co., Morse Building, make a specialty of finishing and care of hard wood floors. tf

—Mrs. N. A. Jones and family have moved here from California and are located on Cabot street for the winter.

—Miss Margaret Worcester, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Carter of Highland avenue, has returned to her home in Philadelphia.

—Dr. Elliot Alden, who has been visiting his parents on Washington park, has gone to Cleveland, Ohio, where he will enter into the practice of medicine.

—The Minneapolis Journal of Oct. 30 has the following complimentary notice regarding Mr. Harvey S. Chase of the village: "It was a strong array of indorsements and the highest bid would have won had it not been for the presence of Harvey Chase, the famous Boston expert, now associated with Jones, Caesar & Co. He showed such complete mastery over the general field of municipal bookkeeping and such an intelligent conception of the weak points in Minneapolis, that when he had finished his remarks Jones, Caesar & Co. had every vote on the committee except that of Alderman G. A. Westphal, who voted for Hawkins & Sells."

Mr. Chase was closely questioned, but more he was examined, the more convincing was the belief that he was the man wanted for the work here."

Auburndale.

Hospital Sunday, Nov. 22.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Robinson of Lexington street have moved to Boston for the winter.

—Rev. and Mrs. John Matteson, who returned recently from Portland, Me., are settled in their home on Auburn street for the winter.

—The Misses Ellen C. Williams and Mary E. Williams have returned from Boston and are occupying the Mosman house on Commonwealth avenue.

—Mr. H. B. Klous and family are moving into the Field house in Weston. Mr. Field is to move into his house recently occupied by Mr. C. A. Harris.

—Mrs. L. P. Elliott-Anderson, 171 Charlesbank road, manufactures switches and all kinds of first class hair work. tf

Park Theatre—"The Younger Mrs. Parling" was given its first production on any stage at the Park Theatre, Boston, on Tuesday evening. It made an immediate and complete success, and it is to be regretted that Miss Russell's many admirers will have but one week more in which to see her in a part which is in every way entirely different from any she has shown us. In the new piece she is given a part of the strong, forceful order, and her work has come as a great surprise to her friends. On Monday, November 23rd, the last week of Miss Russell's Boston engagement begins. "The Younger Mrs. Parling" will be continued and in addition to the regular Saturday matinee, a special matinee will be given on Thanksgiving Day.

Columbia Theatre—"Winsome Winnie," with Paula Edwards at the head of a remarkably strong cast, is keeping up the splendid record of the Columbia Theatre, Boston, and there have been few performances when the house has not been crowded to its capacity. Without a single exception, the Boston papers have given this romantic opera notices of the most laudatory character, and have declared it to be the best musical show seen there this season. It will be the Thanksgiving attraction, with extra matinee given on Thanksgiving Day. "A Girl From Dixie," with Irene Bentley at the head of a large musical organization, will follow "Winsome Winnie" at the Columbia, opening November 30.

Keith's Theatre—The week of Nov. 23 will bring to Keith's a troupe of holiday entertainers, with something special for the juveniles in the Burto-Lowando circus, which includes a beautiful pony, a trained dog, a funny clown and a female trapeze performer. Among the prominent entertainers will be Postlethwaite's Swedish ladies' quartet, an organization of vocalists and dancers just arrived from Europe, and the Fred Gillet trio of acrobats, another recent importation, neither act having been seen in Boston before. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Barry, in comedy sketch; Joe Flynn, the noted parody singer; Gus Williams, the favorite German comedian, and Eldora and Norine, skiffle jugglers. Cole and Johnson, the greatest colored entertainers in the country, will be retained.

Hub Theatre—The ever-increasing patronage at the Hub Theatre is sufficient evidence to the management that the class of entertainment presented, together with the reasonable prices of admission charged, is pleasing thousands of people. The house, under the management of Stair and Wilbur has become a favorite family resort, and the constant aim of the management is to present a line of attractions that will appeal to those, who desire wholesome, refreshing amusement at the most reasonable prices. The daily matinees are attracting many ladies and children who find the Hub a most convenient place to spend a few hours in the afternoon. The attraction announced to follow "Too Proud to Beg," is the sterling drama of Western life, entitled "Nobody's Claim."

West Newton.

Hospital Sunday, Nov. 22.

—Mr. George P. Howlett is making improvements to his residence on Prince street.

—Miss Lillian Tucker of Commonwealth avenue is spending a part of the month in New York.

—A play is in preparation to be given in the parlors of the Unitarian church later in the season. Miss Ethel Freeman is in charge of the rehearsals.

—Mr. Alfred B. Kershaw of Cross street who is a member of the senior class of Amherst College, has been elected a member of the Alumni's missionary committee.

—The painters have been finishing their work this week upon the Baptist church, bringing the work of renovation to a close. The church, since the summer to a close. About $5000 has been expended and the results are very satisfactory. The exterior has been painted and put in thorough repair; new stained glass windows have been put in and the interior has been decorated. The chapel has been enlarged to nearly double its former capacity, providing excellent accommodations for Sunday school and social purposes. New hard wood floors have been laid and new chandeliers provided throughout. The decorations both of the church and chapel are receiving very favorable comment for their artistic treatment. Much of the credit is due to the chairman of the committee, Mr. James McKissack.

Mr. Henry H. Hunt had the contract and has given a large amount of personal attention to these improvements. The church is now very attractive and is most fortunate in so excellent an equipment for its work. The special committee having the work in charge consisted of Mr. James McKissack, Mr. Alfred L. Barbour and Mr. Samuel P. Putnam.

The weakness in foreign exchange was a feature of the week. Notwithstanding the efforts of the Bank of England to prevent a movement of gold this way by marking up its price, exchange weakened so that about $2,500,000 was shipped to New York. It is stated that this is only the beginning of a large movement of gold this way. The flood of cotton bills in New York will undoubtedly cause the exchange to be weak for a month or two. The effect will be to offset movements of currency westward, and to keep money comparatively easy.

Although conditions favor strong recovery in prices, yet nothing better than an irregular market may be looked for until the turn of the year. There may be rallies of several points, but the prevailing pessimistic sentiment will serve to check any bull movement. Good stocks were never better purchasers for investment, to hold for a year or two, but for speculation they should be purchased only on the weak days.—Curtis and Sederquist.

New Telephone Office.

The change of the Telephone system outlined in the last issue of the Graphic took place last Saturday night without a hitch of any kind and the new arrangement is working as smoothly as can be expected with new machinery. On Sunday the Company had nearly 30 inspectors at work on residential telephones, removing the cranks from the bell boxes, and the same work was done in the business district on Monday.

The new building where the exchange is now located is on the rear of a lot on Elmwood street and consists of a two story brick structure. The main floor is occupied with the operating boards, and desk room for the manager, information, and chief operator and retiring and toilet rooms for the telephone girls.

The basement is utilized for the terminal room, batteries, and construction purposes.

School Board.

The meeting of the school committee on Wednesday evening was well attended. Supt. Atkinson's report recommended a number of important changes including the appointment of Miss Thompson of the Rice school as a head kindergarten; a continuance of the evening drawing school during January; the appointment of a supervisor of penmanship at $300; the transfer of the three highest grades of the Hamilton school to the Pierce school; and requesting expression of opinion as to the necessity of a male principal at the Burr school, the last statement being combined with high praise of the work of Miss McKenzie, the acting principal.

A petition was received from W. T. Towner and other residents of Eliot asking for change in district lines between the Hyde and Wade school districts on account of the distance to the Wade school, the steep grade and lack of transportation facilities.

The annual report as made by the chairman was adopted and 2500 copies ordered printed. The resignation of Miss M. F. Babbitt of the Claffin, Miss Annie M. McKenzie of the Hyde, and M. E. Weldy of the evening schools were accepted. These appointments were made: Miss Jennie F. Hayden, first assistant, Williams; Miss A. L. Harrison to the Hamilton; Miss M. C. Melgard to the Claffin; Miss C. M. Donnan to the Burr; Miss E. D. Larrabee to the Horace Mann and Miss M. A. Sampson to the evening school. Harriet B. Spooner of the Williams school was granted leave of absence.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

An Early Meeting and Dinner, When Budget of 1904 Was Considered.

A Total Amount of $1,173,873.39 Adopted for Next Year's Expenses On Recommendation of Finance Committee.

The board met last Monday evening at the unusual hour of five o'clock and devoted the time before dinner which was served at 6.30 to the transaction of routine business.

President Weed was in the chair and Aldermen Baker, Barber, Bowen, Carter, Chesley, F. A. Day, H. B. Day, Dennison, Ellis, Ensign, Lothrop, Mellen, Norris, Saltonstall, Sweeney and Webster were present. Petitions from the Gas Co. for pole locations on Richardson street, Park avenue and for attachments on Park street, Elmwood and Eldredge streets, of the Telephone Co. for attachments on Walnut street, Adams street and Lincoln road were referred to the Finance Committee and hearings ordered thereon for Dec. 3 at 7.45 p. m.

A petition of Josephine Gerrold for damages caused by injuries received from defective sidewalk was referred to the Committee on Claims.

A petition of Jeremiah Cotter to move a building on Fuller street was granted, subject to approval of Inspector of Wires.

Petitions of John A. Potter, Alfred E. Alvord, John Flood and William B. Blakemore were granted, the fee in the Flood case being omitted.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

These reports were received: CLAIMS: Recommending abatement of sewer charge against Ada E. Daniels of $26.13.

FINANCE: Recommending grant of $200,708.48 for city expenses to Dec. 15; recommending transfer of certain appropriations, recommending $1,173,873.39 for city expenses for 1904, and recommending $285,175 as estimated receipts for 1904.

PUBLIC FRANCHISES, ETC.: Recommending granting Gas Co. pole locations on Newtonville avenue, Centre street, Edinboro street, Lowell avenue, Washington street, Farwell street, Kimball terrace, Derby street, Cherry street, Waltham street, Burnham road, Chestnut street, Cottage street, Waldorf road, Beacon street, Elgin street, Hancock avenue, Glenwood avenue and Washington street. Orders for these locations were subsequently adopted.

Recommending granting Telephone Co. pole locations on Stearns street and attachments on Washington street, orders therefor being subsequently adopted.

PUBLIC WORKS: Recommending granting petition for concrete sidewalk on Lake avenue under betterment act.

RULES, ETC.: Submitting amendment to water ordinance.

These committee reports were adopted:

CLAIMS: Recommending leave to withdraw on petitions of G. F. and R. C. Stone for abatement of street watering tax, of Hon. Wm. Clafflin for compensation for use of land, of Michael Norton for damages caused by surface drainage and of Avery L. Rand for abatement of sewer assessment.

PUBLIC FRANCHISES, ETC.: Recommending no further action on petition of Gas Co. for pole locations on Old Orchard and Deerfield roads. Recommending leave to withdraw on petition for revocation of transfer of junk licenses of the Gliff Bros., but suggesting a strict supervision of their premises by the police and health departments; recommending leave to withdraw on petition for removal of street railway tracks from side to center of Woodward street.

PUBLIC WORKS: Recommending leave to withdraw on petition for a fire alarm box on Concord street. RULES, ETC.: Recommending approval of records of board to date. The report of the claims committee recommending leave to withdraw on petition of Henry G. Reid for damages caused to horse and buggy was first tabled on motion of Alderman Barber. Later the matter was taken from the table and recommitted to the Claims Committee for hearing to Mr. Reid. Alderman Mellen at first opposed this motion, saying that the petitioner had no possible claim either in law, equity or common sense, but later withdrew opposition to its recommendation.

The report of the Public Works committee that leave to withdraw be granted on petition for a sewer in Chapel street was recommitted on the statement that the petitioners had a new proposition to submit to the city.

ORDERS.

Orders granting $200,708.48 for city expenses to Dec. 15, transferring $300 from the appropriation for Soldiers relief to Almshouse expenses and transferring unexpended balance of appropriation for interest on City Loans Permanent to interest on City Loans Temporary, assigning hearing Dec. 7 on construction of concrete sidewalk on Lake avenue under betterment act, authorizing abatement of $23.13 sewer charge on estate of Ada E. Daniels, and appropriating $5000 for burying city wires were adopted.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

The board then went into the Committee of the Whole, with Alderman Saltonstall in the chair to consider the budget for 1904.

The report of the Finance Committee was taken up in detail and the various departments considered separately. Before beginning this work Alderman Webster facetiously suggested that the board adopt the recommendations of the Finance committee in bulk. In the assessing committee, Alderman Webster criticized the increase in expense remarking that the board was assured last winter that the reorganization would not increase the cost.

In the matter of estimated receipts Alderman Webster asked the reason for the decrease in the street railway tax from $17,000 to $12,000. At 6.30 p. m. a recess was taken for dinner and upon reassembling at 8 p. m. a hearing was held with the President in the chair upon the removal of certain trees in Ward 6. No one appeared and the hearing was closed. The session of the committee of the whole was immediately resumed.

Aldermen Brown and Johnson were present at the evening session. The recommendation of the Finance committee of $1500 for contagious diseases, Health department was criticized by Alderman H. B. Day, who desired it raised to $2400 in order to allow the department to inaugurate the examination of sputum for consumption. Mr. Day spoke strongly in favor of the amendment. It was opposed by Alderman Mellen, who said it was simply the opening wedge of what could undoubtedly prove a costly experiment. Alderman Carter favored the amendment but it was defeated.

A long discussion followed the item of $15,000 for School Incidentals. Alderman Mellen explained that this item was closely related to the order appropriating $10000 for purchase of school maps, books, etc., which had been tabled earlier in the evening at the request of Alderman Webster.

He stated that the School dept. was seriously handicapped by the lack of adequate equipment and that the city was disgracefully behind in such important matters. The school committee had intended to ask for $2500 yearly until the full amount had been appropriated but the Finance committee had believed that the whole amount should be appropriated at once in order that the children attending the schools today might receive the benefit of the equipment. The matter was further discussed by Aldermen Barber, Webster, Brown and Lothrop, and the committee's recommendation of $15,000 adopted.

After concluding the budget the committee rose and reported to the board which thereupon unanimously adopted the sum of $285,175 for the estimated receipts for 1904 and the sum of $1,173,873.39 for the expenses of 1904. Alderman Webster called attention to his first motion and believed the evening might have been saved if it had been adopted. Alderman Webster also reminded the board that this order virtually fixed the tax rate for 1904.

When the order establishing the rate of interest on unpaid taxes at 6 per cent. was introduced Alderman Webster desired a reduction to 5 per cent., believing that such action would benefit the poorer tax payers.

The motion was opposed by Aldermen Saltonstall, Bowen, H. B. Day and Ellis and the City Treasurer's opinion was also against it. The alderman thereupon withdrew the motion and the order was adopted.

An order for $13,000 Washington street bonds was referred to the Finance Committee.

Alderman Webster's motion that the President be a committee to investigate the reason for the reduction in the street railway tax was adopted after a brief debate.

Alderman Saltonstall desired the $10,000 order for school equipment taken from the table and acted upon. The motion was opposed by Alderman Webster, who wished the courtesy of delay extended to him. The motion was then withdrawn.

The order granting the Telephone Co. a location for poles on Madison avenue was taken then from the table. Alderman Dennison said that several telephones had been taken out in this district because wires had been ordered off of houses by the owners. Alderman Johnson opposed the order, saying that if residents of Newtonville avenue desired telephone service they should have the poles on their own street and not put them on Madison avenue, where every abuttor was opposed to them. Alderman H. B. Day stated that the opposition on Madison avenue came from abuttors where there would be no poles under this order. Alderman Lothrop explained that the estates on Newtonville avenue as a rule also abutted on Madison avenue. The order was then adopted.

Alderman Brown submitted the draft of an ordinance changing the method of collecting water rates and saying that after careful investigation he believed the present method would compare favorably with that of any large business house. A perfecting amendment was adopted and the ordinance passed to be enrolled.

The board adjourned at 9.32 p. m.

The Rev. Iri R. Hicks 1904 Almanac.

The Rev. Iri R. Hicks Almanac for 1904 is now ready. It will be mailed to any address for 30 cents. It is surprising how such an elegant, costly book can be sent prepaid so cheaply. No family or person is prepared to study the heavens, or the storms and weather in 1904, without this wonderful Hicks Almanac and Prof. Hicks' splendid paper, Word and Works. Both are sent for only One Dollar a Year. Word and Works is among the best American Magazines. Like the Hicks Almanac, it is too well known to need further commendation. Few men have labored more faithfully for the public good or found a warmer place in the hearts of the people. Send orders to Word and Works Publishing Co., 2201 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

Licenses.

An important hearing was concluded last Saturday evening before the Committee on Licenses at City Hall, upon the investigation of the conduct of business by P. J. Evremont Lacroix under his Sixth Class Liquor license. The hearing began last week Thursday with City Solicitor Slocum representing the prosecution and Jesse C. Ivy, Esq., appearing for Mr. Lacroix.

The evidence presented by the prosecution tended to show that Mr. Lacroix's clerk had made a sale of whiskey to an intoxicated man and without receiving a signature as required by law. Other testimony was to the effect that sales had been made to minors by both Mr. Lacroix and his clerk, and that sales had been frequently made to persons known to be drunkards or who had been arrested for drunkenness.

The defence had its turn on Saturday night and presented evidence that the whiskey found upon the intoxicated person had been seen on the man by one person before the man had entered Lacroix's store, and a young lady testified that she had heard the drug clerk refused to sell liquor to the man. One sale to a minor was acknowledged, but with the statement that the person had been asked if he was of age and an affirmative reply received before the sale was made.

The hearing was closed about midnight Saturday and the matter taken under advisement by the committee.

Cooking Demonstration lectures will be given by Miss Anna Barrows, the well known and favorite lecturer, on Expert Cooking, at the Methodist church parlors, Newtonville, on Monday afternoons, Nov. 30, Dec. 7, 14, 28, at three o'clock. Benefit of Deaconess work among the children of Boston.

Political Notes.

"It is said," says the Springfield Republican, "that Senator William F. Dana of Newton, who has just been promoted from the House to the Senate, will be the president of the Senate of 1905. He is said to be as sure of it as if he had been already elected. But this prediction is based solely upon the evident fitness of things, and the absence of candidates who will oppose him. Dana is the last man in the world to be projecting a presidential campaign before he has taken his seat in the Senate at all. It is understood that President Jones will retire after his second term in the chair. Dana will then have had one year in the Senate, and will make a good presiding officer. He was the House chairman of the committee on the corporation law, and, whatever criticism is made about his support of that law, is undoubtedly one of the most fair-minded and honest men and is probably the best man the Senate has for the office."

Mrs. Alice May, for years resident on the continent of Europe and a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music at London, will give lessons in French and German (conversation and theory) and pianoforte for beginners. A specially made of children. Address, 11 Meredith avenue, Newton Highlands. 13t

VITAL QUESTIONS.

Asked by Newton Education Association.

Answers Requested From All Interested.

The executive committee of the Newton Education Association has sent the following questions to all the members of that body, requesting the courtesy of a reply. The committee would also like to have the questions answered by those who are not members but who feel an interest in the matters affected:

1. How can we get Newton to provide rooms and teachers enough so that we need have only half as many pupils in a class as we have at present?
2. How can we make and keep school buildings as hygienic as the best home in the city? Is it not important that they should be?
3. How shall we get the city to appropriate the sum of $2,500 (which the Board of Health says is quite enough) for a daily visit to the schools, by a physician selected by the Board of Health, for the purpose of examining all children who seem to be ill, and sending home any coming down with a contagious disease, and thus save other children from disease, if not from something worse? The School Board and Board of Health have already voted unanimously in favor of such daily inspection.
4. Ought we not to get specialists (as we can do at small cost) to examine the eyes of the children, so that parents and teachers may know whether shortsightedness or other defects of vision may not be responsible for the lack of ready replies to things written on the blackboard?
5. Is it possible to arrange our athletics so that the large majority may have a wholesome amount of exercise, even though we cannot prevent a few from getting too much?
6. How can we secure two good playgrounds in every ward before all the land is taken up for other purposes, or becomes too high in price?
7. How can we establish in Newton a good public bath, where the children can be taught to swim and can enjoy the most healthful exercise all the year round?
8. How can we get for each ward a branch library, where children may find good, wholesome books and learn to love them, before they have a chance to be ruined by bad ones?
9. How are we to get in each ward a good vacation school, where children may be educated mentally, morally, and physically, instead of being left to the ravages of idleness and bad companionship?
10. How are we to secure three more men teachers for the 850 pupils in our High school, and thus insure its remaining as it is—the best high school in the state, if not in the country?
11. How can we better satisfy those who want one session a day in the elementary schools and at the same time those who want two sessions, than by devoting the morning session to cardinal studies, and promoting pupils on these, and the afternoon session to the so-called "non-essentials," and allowing the parent to say whether or not his child shall attend the afternoon session?
12. Can you suggest a novel but successful plan for securing money for the better decoration of such schoolrooms as require further care in this respect?
13. Can parents do anything to influence the character, the time, and the frequency of children's entertainments, so that these may not interfere with school duties, and may provide ample recreation, without injury to health?
14. Can anything more be done to improve the manners and morals of our children by securing the co-operation of parents and teachers to that end?
15. Most of these questions will be answered as follows: "By raising more money for schools," and therefore the greatest question of all is: How can we get more money for schools, which are (everything considered) the most important charge the city has? We might get on with thousands less for streets, but can we afford to do less than the best for our children?
16. Finally, and what is most important just now: What suggestions can you give us as to a program for the coming winter?

Hotel Empire.

Among the numerous fine hotels for which New York is justly noted, there is, perhaps, none which is better qualified than the Hotel Empire, 63rd street and Broadway, to supply all the needs of a family who, wishing to visit the city, are looking for the comforts of a home while here, and are desirous of avoiding all of the objectionable features that are so often attached to hotel life. The location is charming and from it all parts of the city may be easily reached, either by the elevated road or any of the numerous lines of surface cars which pass the door. The hotel itself is modern and up to date, the rooms are large and fitted up in the best of taste, and both the service and table are all that can be desired. One new feature which Mr. Quinn has recently added is a reading room and library for the use of his guests, where are to be found the standard magazines, weeklies and dailies of this country, as well as many from Europe and Canada. Unlike some other of our hotels its patrons can be accommodated here at a reasonable cost, and any one who intends coming to New York will do well to write Mr. Quinn for his descriptive circular and rates before deciding on any other hotel.

Murphy Captured.

George Murphy, also known as Edmund Kelley, was arrested at Elkins Park, Pa., last Friday for an alleged swindle on Prof. Albert E. Bailey of the Allen school, West Newton. Extradition papers were secured and Chief Tarbox left on Monday for the man.

Mr. Murphy's connection with the institution began in September of this year, when a letter was received by Principal Bailey bearing a Washington, D. C., date mark, from a woman giving the name of Mrs. Baird. According to the letter, Mrs. Baird was a widow having a permanent home in San Francisco. She had three nice boys in whose future welfare she was naturally very much interested. She desired that they should grow up into good men, etc., and as she was about to go to Europe she wished to place them in some school where they would be kindly cared for and receive a first class training. As the Allen school had been mentioned to her as just such a model institution, she had been thinking of placing her boys there. Being a very busy woman, however, she wanted to place the entire matter in the hands of her courier, a Mr. George Murphy, in whom she had explicit confidence. Mr. Murphy was in San Francisco with the boys, and should Mr. Bailey care to have them placed in his school the letter requested that he should at once correspond with Mr. Murphy.

Naturally, Mr. Bailey was willing to have the boys placed in his school at West Newton, so he corresponded with Mr. Murphy, that model courier. The outcome was that on Sept. 30, Mr. Murphy, in person, appeared at Mr. Bailey's home on Waltham street, West Newton. Mr. Murphy proved to be a most gentlemanly and cultured fellow, and to show his places talked at intervals to Mr. Bailey. Mrs. Baird, he said, was such a particular woman that before he could make any agreement as to placing the boys in the school, he desired to talk with the German professor there, to see if he had the proper accent. He was accommodated by the German professor and after some more red tape and much fawning around decided that the Allen school was the proper place in which to put the unsophisticated youths from San Francisco. Thus far everything had gone very nicely, but, as in many other transactions, the came in that little word "if."

Mr. Murphy brought up the "if," it is said, in the following manner: "If," he is reported to have said, "I place these boys in your school, Mr. Bailey, I shall expect your patronage of me."

Mr. Murphy then produced a handsome morocco-covered leather book, and, saying he was doing a little advertising as a side line, impressed on Mr. Bailey's mind the importance of having an ad. for the Allen school in that particular book. "The price," said Mr. Murphy, "will be just $200."

Well, Mr. Bailey considered that the price was altogether too high, and, after much conversation, $100 in cash was finally agreed upon. Mr. Murphy grumbled somewhat at having to cut his rates, but the outcome was that a certain contract, the details of which cannot be ascertained, was drawn up and mutually signed. Mr. Murphy then went away with the $100 and that is the last Mr. Bailey has seen or heard of either the $100, Mr. Murphy, Mrs. Baird or the three fledglings from San Francisco. As the days went by Mr. Bailey began to see a bright light and after much thought finally came to the conclusion that he had been swindled. He therefore put the matter into the hands of Chief Tarbox of the Newton police.

Block Signals.

The management of the Boston and Worcester street railway in making its plan for a greatly improved service next summer, and the shortening of running time between Worcester and Boston, has not overlooked the important subject of providing every safeguard for the protection of the patrons of the road.

After careful study and frequent consultation with experts, a system of train dispatching has been evolved, which would seem to reduce the danger of collisions to a minimum. The system adopted is a thorough one, and no electric road in the East is similarly equipped at present.

The entire line is covered by a first class telephone system. At all important operating points an effective block signal system has been installed, in connection with the telephone system. All telephone and signal stations are furnished with an autographic register, which renders in triplicate the written orders receive at the station.

All orders governing the movement of cars come from a train dispatcher located at a central point on the system. Serious defects have been found in the system of issuing verbal telephone orders to crews at various points on the line.

When accidents or delays occur, the responsibility cannot be placed satisfactorily, there being nothing to replace the written telegraphic orders which are issued on the steam roads, and the blame and responsibility may be unjustly transferred to the dispatcher or attributed to a misunderstanding of orders.

Such a contingency will be impossible under the new system adopted by the Boston and Worcester road, which operates in this way: The dispatcher wishes to reach car crew at station number 9. He picks up a three inch toothed disk numbered to correspond with the block which he wishes to set, and slips it on a motor-driven revolving shaft located directly at hand.

This throws a four-foot semaphore arm to a stop position at the station required, at the same time illuminating a red lens for a night signal. As soon as the semaphore is properly set at stop, the dispatcher is automatically informed by the operation of a magnetic sounder at his office.

The car arrives at the station, the conductor unlocks the booth and calls the dispatcher by telephone, saying: "Brown and Hayes at number 9, orders." The dispatcher then transmits his orders to the conductor, who writes them on the autographic register, repeats them back to the dispatcher, extracts therefrom in duplicate, one of which he hands to his motorman, who places it in a spring holder, arranged to receive same in front of him in the vestibule, and retains the other and proceeds. The third copy is wound on a roll within the register and is accessible only to the management.

The dispatcher keeps a written record in a book arranged for the purpose of all orders issued and are all numbered in sequence each day. By this method it is possible to advance or set back cars at any point on the system with no possibility of confusion or misunderstanding.

The movement of every car on the system is controlled by the dispatcher and recorded on a train sheet. As a method of still further security the dispatcher is able by touching a button to shut off the power on the whole system, so that if by any chance a car could get past him, all danger of accident can be avoided. —Worcester Telegram, Nov. 15, 1903.

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out?
Tired and completely run down?
You have no vitality, no energy.
You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared.
It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.

Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings.

We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness. To the nursing mother this will come like a God-send.

One bottle will convince you.

closed.Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 25 cents per line in the reading matter, or $1.00 per inch in the advertising columns.A careful consideration of the budget adopted for next year shows that there is a net increase over this year of $36,677. The increase is caused wholly by the additional amounts of over $20,000 each required by the treasury and school departments, there being a net decrease in the other expenses of the city.The mayor's recommendations regarding salaries in several instances are not followed by the board, which evidently believes it knows more regarding the value of the city's servants, than the mayor who has been intimately acquainted with them during the last two years. The board also prohibits the health department from taking an advanced stand in the matter of sputum examination for consumption. This matter was re-hashed from last year, and we believe that the real merits of this work are lost sight of in the consideration of trivial details.The budget as adopted will add sixty cents to the tax rate on the present valuation, and herein we again, at the risk of being wearisome, present our protest on behalf of the tax payers of 1904 against incorporating large sums for permanent improvements in the levy. We again refer to the sum of $15,000 included in the item for drains and culverts.
This is for new work, and work of a character which places it on a par with sewer construction. The sewers are paid for by long term bonds and drains should also be paid for in that manner.So long as the present policy for payment of drains is continued, an injustice is done the taxpayers of each year, when such appropriations are made. The amount in the budget for 1904 calls for about 25 cents addition to the tax rate, an amount which might easily be saved if a consistent and well considered financial plan was adopted by the city.The work of widening Cheese Cake Brook is a shining example of the financial inconsistencies of the city.
That part of the work from the Charles River to Eddy street was paid for in bonds running 30 years. The next section continuing to the vicinity of Watertown street was paid for in one year, out of the tax levy, while the rest of the work to the railroad at West Newton was paid from 40 year bonds. There are plenty of instances where an eight inch sewer and an eight inch drain are laid in the same street, the sewer cost being apportioned over 30 years while the drain was paid for at once.
Such a policy either wrongs the present tax payer or it is unjust to the future tax payer, and the advocates of the present inconsistencies can take either horn of the dilemma they choose.Whatever may be the outcome of the recent hearing before the city government regarding liquor sales by druggists, the agitation of the matter will do a world of good. While any licensed druggist has a perfect legal right to make as many liquor sales as he chooses, it is well to let all licensed parties, whether for the sale of liquor or for any other purpose, know that public sentiment will insist upon a reasonable regard for ordinary decency in operating under such il-lenses.This city persistently and constantly votes for No License and it does not desire the effect of that vote to be nullified by the promiscuous sale of liquor by druggists.The municipal campaign has only ten days remaining and both sides appear to have gone to sleep so far as appearances are concerned. We have reason to believe that this is premeditated by the democrats as they must rely on a large per cent. of stay at homes among the republicans in order to even stand a chance for winning.
They do not desire a large vote, and will not attempt to excite any large amount of public interest. The republicans however, should arouse as much interest as possible as the reserve vote in this city is always in their favor.

THE WORD MELODRAMA.

It Has Drifted From Its Derivation and Original Significance.Nowadays "melodrama" is in general use as denoting a purely sensational play, with an all but impossible hero, heroine and villain among the characters represented. Formerly the word kept more closely in its significance to actual derivation. "Melodrama" is compounded of the Greek words melos, a song, and drama, an action, a play, and was applied to two sorts of performances when it first came into use.
It signified a play, generally of the romantic school, in which the dialogue was frequently relieved by music.
Sometimes of an incidental and sometimes of a purely dramatic character.
On the strength of his "Pygmalion" J.
J. Rousseau is credited with the invention of this style. Some of the so called English operas of the older school, such as the once famous "Beggars Opera" and the once popular "No Song, No Supper," are in reality true melodramas.In the second place "melodrama" was applied to a peculiar kind of theatrical composition in which the actor recited his part in an ordinary speaking voice, while the orchestra played a more or less elaborate accompaniment appropriate to the situation and calculated to bring its salient features into the highest possible relief. The merit of the invention of this description of melodrama belongs to George Benda, who used it with striking effect in his "Ariadne auf Naxos," produced at Gotha in 1774.—London Globe.

The Ordeals of a Doctor.

It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies, but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after fifteen years of waiting and hoping and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year suddenly struck down and gasped its little life out in a day with pneumonia.
These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten hours such as these.—Everybody's Magazine.

Storms of Old England.

In the year 944 in London alone 1,500
houses were blown down; in October, 1091, a great number of churches and 500 houses were destroyed; in 1235 it thundered for fifteen days consecutively.
The dreadful night during which Cromwell's spirit passed has formed a theme for poet and partisan. And the great storm that "over pale Britania passed" in November, 1703, the most terrible in British annals, also has its enduring record in poetry. It did damage in London to the amount of £2,000,000; over 8,000 people were drowned in floods in various parts of the country; twelve men-of-war, with over 1,800 men on board, went down in sight of land, and the Eddystone light-house, along with Winstanley, its inventor, was swept away.Blind Swimmer's Straight Steering.
It is a standing puzzle that all blind swimmers are able to hold an almost perfectly straight course for very considerable distances, though no more guidance is given to them than some species of call or whistle coming from the winning goal. A blind man, in fact, desiring to go in a straight line possesses the curious power of being able to do so almost exactly. A provincial mayor instituted a series of contests in an open lake between blind men and ordinary ones of about equal skill and strength, and the result was marvelous so far as the straight steering of the blind was concerned.—London Chronicle.

Moths and Butterflies.

Butterflies are active in the day and fold their wings together when they settle. Their antennae end in clubs.
The fore and hind wings never book together. The chrysalis is angular and not inclosed in a cocoon or silken case.
Moths, on the other hand, are usually active in the dusk or at night and do not fold their wings together on settling. The feelers are very various in shape, but rarely clubbed. The fore and hind wings are generally fastened together during flight by a "hook and eye" arrangement. The chrysalis is not angular and is inclosed in some sort of case or cocoon.

Jewels on an Idol.

The jewels of an Indian idol must be worth stealing if many of those remarkably hideous images possess such valuable head ornaments as one made for the idol Parthasathy, in the Triplicane temple at Madras. The ornament is worth some 50,000 rupees and is made of sovereign gold studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the largest emerald being valued at 1,000 rupees and the biggest ruby and diamond at 300 rupees apiece.

The doctor was sanguine.
"We're going to pull you through!"
quoth he.
"By the leg?" querulously demanded
the patient, a sordid man, whose soul, even in that extreme moment, brooded on the matter of expense.—Puck.

$1,000 In Gold.

The Boston Post has just started the most fascinating contest ever known. A superb lady's chatelaine Swiss gold watch wound up at noon
Friday, Nov. 20, and then wrapped up and put under seal in a safe by disinterested experts.The Boston Post offers one thousand dollars in gold and the watch itself, with diamond chatelaine pin, to anyone who will estimate at what time
it stops, or, failing correct estimates, then the nearest correct.All estimates must be made on coupons in the Boston Post, where full conditions will be found. There is no charge whatever for estimating.
The contest closes Dec. 21, and it is proposed to make the awards in time for Christmas. All New England is getting excited over the contest.

[SEAL.] Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Boston, November 21, 1903.

On the Petitions of the Newton Street Railway Company, the Woburn and Boston Street Railway Company and the Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway Company for approval of terms of purchase and condemnation and approval of an increase of stock by the Newton Street Railway Company, the Board will give a hearing to the parties in interest at their office, No. 20 Beacon Street, Boston, on Wednesday, the second day of December next at eleven-thirty o'clock in the forenoon.

And the petitioner is required to give notice of said hearing by publication seven days prior to said date in the Boston Evening Transcript and the Waltham Free Press-Tribune, to serve a copy thereof on the City of Newton and the City of Waltham, and to make return of service at the time of hearing.

LETTER WRITING.

The Decline as an Art Caused by the Modern Newspaper.

The wonderful development of the newspaper may be looked upon as a very potent factor in the decline of letter writing as an art. The letter no longer can be regarded as primarily the carrier of news. The expression of one's opinion about great contemporary events is indeed still left to the letter, but how much of an incentive to friendly correspondence is lost by the fact that every part of the world knows of important happenings almost simultaneously is not to be lightly estimated, says Guntion's Magazine. The stimulus to writing that comes from having "news" to impart is done away with, and it is not always that even the gifted letter writer can afford to lose that incentive. It is only the correspondent par excellence who knows how to attain the perfection of his art by writing delightfully of nothing, if indeed that may be called nothing which affords him a means for the employment of his delicate perceptions. For the saving quality of the genuine letter is in the ability of its author to put himself into it. If he writes about trivial things he does it with a grace of interest that disguises the triviality. He must not make his little fishes talk like whales, but he should, as Goldsmith himself knew how to do, make his letters of perpetual interest because of the aptness of their style to the simplicity of their thought.

The Delights of Noddy.

I cling to that perhaps fanciful theory that no primitive instinct of man is altogether lost. It is modified, amplified, refined; that is all. With all our culture we are barbarians still. Man is a clothed savage. And now and again he delights in donning the clothing and returning heartily to savagery. How delightful the feel of the briny breeze and the boisterous wave on the bare pelt! Mr. Edward Carpenter rails at the I think, eleven layers of clothing that intervene between our skins and the airs of heaven. Walt Whitman reveled in his nude son bath. What a treat, too, sometimes to get away from the multicourse dinner and to bite downright audibly into simple food in the fresh air and to lap water noisily from the brook! Well, walking perhaps is the primal instinct, ancient as Eden, where the Lord God walked in the garden in the cool of the day. And if my theory is correct walking will persist till in recovered paradise man walks with his Maker again. No mechanical contrivance for locomotion will extirpate the tribe of tourists, of those who walk from love of walking.—Arnold Haultain in Atlantic.

Such Birds Come High.

There used to be in a store on Ninth avenue, New York, a very valuable canary whose owner and teacher, the wife of the German proprietor, refused an offer of $500 for it. Sometimes as one entered the place there came from a corner in the rear a liquid peal of music so sweet and high and clear that it sounded like a piccolo without the metallic shrillness of that instrument. In a small wicker cage a black and yellow canary watched round and round, never quiet, and as it danced it sang the air of "Lauterbach" from beginning to end without a false quantity, without missing or changing a note. When the solo was finished the bird whisked up to its perch, trilled an improvisation and then began the melody again, breaking off in the middle, warbling a little in self-willed fashion and then finishing the air. It was a beautiful and unique performance.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Smoking in Banks.

In every bank in New York there is a rule against smoking, and it is doubtful if any depositor or visitor ever saw a coil of tobacco smoke drifting through the atmosphere in the big counting houses—that is, no visitor who is excluded from the building promptly when the bank closes. But if the curious could squeeze their way through those closed portals in the afternoon they would be treated to a very different sight.

The rules against smoking in all the big banks of the city apply only during banking hours. After the doors are closed and locked one can transform himself into a human volcano with perfect freedom—and he does. And "he" is legion.—New York Times.

A Personal Bill of Fare.

A square of Andover once hired a brother of Patrick, who was in his employment. The terms were made with Patrick before his brother's arrival, and the following conversation ensued:

Squire—I'll pay your brother one fifty a day, Patrick.

Patrick (bowing and smiling)—Yis, sor; yis, sor; and will be ate himself or will ye ate him, sor?

The squire thought that Dennis had better eat himself.—Lippincott's.

His Sobriety.

A gentleman who had grave doubts as to a servant's sobriety one day accused him of intemperance and as a test chalked a line across the floor and commanded him to walk along it.

The fellow looked at the line for a bit, then at his employer, and said: "No jokes, now, sir. Which line do you want me to walk on?"

Not Complaining of That.

"Some people say you have more money than brains," said the blunt person.

"I hope so," answered Senator Sorghum. "Most everybody I run across is trying to trade off brains for money."—Washington Star.

The first steamer on the Thames was the Marjory in 1814. The Richmond followed her a year later.

DUCKS WERE DECEITFUL.

Ingenious Fraud Practiced by the Heathen Chinese.

The ingenuity of the Chinaman is wonderful, surpassing at times the belief of his European and American brothers. A striking instance of it, not unshared with guile, was brought to light recently during the trading transactions of two foreigners at Boone Road market.

This husband and wife, having decided that duck should figure on the menu of the day, went the round of the market in search of a fat, plump, well-favored bird.

After awhile two were purchased. They were beautifully dressed ducks, young, but plump, and promised to show up well at the evening table.

When the domestic pair got home the lady chanced to puncture one of the birds with a sharp knife, and it collapsed like a toy balloon. The other, subjected to similar treatment, followed suit. Their erstwhile inflated bodies became flat and bony and were ghosts of the ducks that had been bought.

Investigation showed that a thin piece of wire had been fastened round the birds' necks and elsewhere, and everything pointed to the conclusion that the ducks had been blown up with a bicycle pump.

How the ducks had been drawn and then made to stand the strain of the air pump is evidently an oriental trade secret.

When the young couple again go shopping for ducks they will take a shaver along with them.—Shanghai Times.

Stewed Snapper.

"Stewed snapper," said the proprietor of a restaurant that makes a specialty of the toothsome dish, "is almost as distinctively Philadelphia as scrapple and pepper pot. Prepared by the same formula as terrapin, with a liberal seasoning of sherry, snapper is quite as palatable as the diamond back, provided the meat comes from a young turtle. In fact, I defy any one but an epicure to tell the difference. The snappers that come to Philadelphia are mostly caught in the muddy bottomed creeks that flow into the Delaware on the Jersey side, and just now they are coming in very plentifully. The snapper is a difficult catch to handle, but the Jerseymen know how to turn the trick and get them to market alive. They run in weight from four pounds all the way up to forty pounds, the smaller ones being naturally more tender and consequently better meat. Some few are shipped to Trenton and New York, but most of them come to Philadelphia."—Philadelphia Record.

A Common Weakness.

Dr. Joseph Le Conte was an authority, recognized by the world at large, on the science of vision. One day he was showing a class how to detect the blind spot in the human eye. He took two coins and held them, one in each hand, before him on the table.

"Look at both of these steadily," said he, "and gradually move them in opposite directions. Presently they will pass beyond the range of vision. That is due to the blind spot. Continue the movement, and the coins will again emerge to view."

Then the philosopher and naturalist held his little joke. "You can experiment for yourself at home," said he. "But if you are unsuccessful try some other object instead of a coin. Some people have no blind spot for money."

Making a Will.

Always call in a lawyer to make a will. If one cannot be procured then write your wishes in the simplest words you can. Never try to use what you may consider "legal terms." Few persons realize how difficult it is to make a will. A classic example is the celebrated Lord St. Leonards, at one time lord chancellor of England. He was the foremost conveyancer of his day, and yet when he died an informal will was found in his coat pocket, hurriedly written when he was at the point of death. This will occupied the courts for years and served "to point a moral and adorn a tale."

Comforting.

A man who had buried three wives took to himself a fourth lately, and, as is wont in Lancashire, the pair went for a walk one Sunday afternoon. On the way they called at the cemetery where the three former wives reposed in the one grave. The new wife read the inscriptions with some interest, but her feelings may well be imagined when she came to the usual text from the Scriptures. It ran, "Be ye also ready."—London Standard.

Business Principles.

Dolly—So Nimpkins, the cashier of the bank, proposed to you last night.

Polly—Yes; and I promised to marry him.

"Did he ask your father's permission?"

"Yes; he said he would ask papa to indorse my promissory note."

Not His Kind.

"Would you die for me?" she asked dreamily.

"Oh, say," he retorted in a matter of fact way, "if you haven't any more ambition than to be looking for dead ones you're not the girl for me!"—Chicago Post.

Changed His Mind.

Naggaisy—I thought you were never going to work for those people again.

Waggaisy—I did say so, but since that time they have decided that I might come back.—Baltimore American.

Natural History.

Pupli—Beees live in a hive, but they call it a cellar, for it is full of cells. Beees also make honey. They make it fine by combining it with a fine honeycomb.—New York Times.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

"Majestic Theatre—Next week begins the last three weeks of 'The Earl of Pawtucket' at the Majestic Theatre. This splendid comedy up to the present time has been visited by over sixty thousand people during its stay in Boston, and from present indications it will continue to crowd the theatre until the very closing night of the season. Special interest aside from the splendid impersonations of Lawrence D'O'Leary and the excellent company has been lent to 'The Earl of Pawtucket' by the magnificent new production that has graced the Majestic stage for the past week. So large has the business been that it has become necessary to add several special matinees in order that the thousands who desire to see this play may be accommodated.

Columbia Theatre—Commencing Monday evening next, 'A Girl from Dixie,' one of the bright new musical comedies of the season, will be seen at the Columbia for two weeks only. The organization is headed by Irene Bentley, one of the most beautiful women upon the stage, and she will have the benefit of a supporting company of especial strength. 'A Girl from Dixie' is a story of a bright, vivacious little southern girl, set to beautiful music. The company is a very large one, and the Columbia should continue to do a very heavy business.

Boston Music Hall—Edward E. Kidder's beautiful pastoral play, 'Sky Farm,' which enjoyed a long and prosperous run at the old Boston Museum, will be the attraction next week at Music Hall. The play is one of the most interesting, sweetest, purest and brightest plays of its class now before the American public. It seems to excel particularly in fun and charming love-making and to have very few moments when there is any attempt to bring tears to the eyes or create any feelings of sorrow. Daily matinees will be given and there will be no advance in prices.

Hub Theatre—Lincoln J. Carter's great melodrama, 'The Eleventh Hour,' will be the next week's attraction at the Hub Theatre, opening with the matinee next Monday. A better play than 'The Eleventh Hour' has not been seen in Boston for a long time. The novel scenic effects are said to be of great value. Some of the best known places in the city of Chicago being shown in the most realistic manner. Daily matinees will be given as usual during the week. The attraction announced to follow is the pleasing melodramatic comedy 'A Ragged Hero.'

"AFTER HER OWN HEART."

"Men fit for husbands are not always born with all the graces that their lives adorn. Some gentle woman takes one in her rare and lovely woman, acting with a wisdom rare. And while he fancies she is meek and still, Obeying all the dictates of his will, She holds the fury helm that seems to go By all the hidden springs that women know."

Judicious petting, not too freely given; A little counsel just to make it even, A little flattery, by way of dress, Sometimes more potent than a fond caress; Struggle to a husband's heart, the gosips say, But better still, a cultivated mind, Patient and tender, gracious and refined; And lovely woman, acting with a wisdom rare, May fashion husbands after her own heart."

—Good Housekeeping

Literary Notes.

The December number of Pearson's justifies the interest with which its readers have learned to look to it for bright special articles of timely interest. The opening article is one on "The Social Duties of Mrs. Roosevelt," by Mrs. Abby G. Baker, and others of interest are: "Modern Methods of Finance," "Example I"—Copper, Part I, "The Blind Pool," written by Henry George, Jr.; "Young Men in Congress—Chief Peck Sketches of the Younger Generation of Statesmen now in the Eye of the Public," contributed by Mr. North Overton Messenger; "The Automobile, Its Powers and Possibilities," by Mr. C. J. L. Clarke; "The Alaska Boundary Question—The Ground for the Dispute Between the United States and Canada, and Its Final Settlement," by Richard V. Gullahan; "An Autobiography of an Australian Kangaroo," by Mr. A. J. Dawson, and Modern Comedy and Ancient Atmosphere, "Some Aspects of the Present Dramatic Season." There is a clever short story by Edith Elmer Wood—"The First Lieutenant's Christmas Tree," another of the Picaroona stories—"The Mystery of the Hamman Baths," by Gelett Burgess and Will Lewis; "How Don O'Played a Three Cornered Game," by K. and Hesketh Prichard, and the last but one instalment of Sir Henry Morgan—"Bucanar," by Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady. Two short poems, "Sleep," by Mr. A. Eastman Elwin, and "Lie On Your Oars and Rest Awhile," by Charles H. Crandall, and the usual interesting features of the Home Notes pages complete the number. The illustrations are numerous and good.

It is many years since Kate Douglas Wiggin found her first rapturous circle of girl readers in the happy subscribers to St. Nicholas. A generation now grown up still knows the original "Half a Dozen Housekeepers" well enough to trace memory every change of growth the story has undergone to make its production in book form possible. "Eskaluna's Pearls," the "Winter Picnic," "Young Lochinvar" and all the other familiar incidents and episodes of the jolly six are retained and some new ones added. It was always a capital story, an animated record of girlish fun and frolic, simple, natural and attractive, and it is even better now than at its first appearance. Mrs. Wiggin's work is always bright and sincere. "Half a Dozen Housekeepers," Henry Altemus Co., Philadelphia, decorated cloth, 75c. is a genuine book, a welcome relief from the froth so generally offered to the modern girl by the modern fiction writer.—Boston Transcript.

Globe Theatre—Managers Weber and Fields will present at the Globe Theatre next Monday evening for the first time in this country, a new musical comedy, entitled "An English Daisy." It will be presented with all the prodigality and lavishness which have characterized all the Weber-Fields productions. There are 125 people in the company and over 30 persons in the cast, everyone of whom is a recognized artist. The chorus of "An English Daisy" is the largest and prettiest on the American stage, every member having been selected for beauty and grace and talent. The costumes are exquisite in design and general attractiveness. "An English Daisy" will be presented every evening at 8 and Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2.15.

Grand Opera House—Smith O'Brien the romantic Irish actor and singer, comes to the Grand Opera House next week in "The Game Keeper." While the drama abounds in pathos it possesses a vein of comedy entirely new in Irish drama and allows ample opportunity for Mr. O'Brien to introduce his original songs for which he is justly famous. Every act known to stage craft has been utilized to make the scenic effects realistic and picturesque and Ireland and its people are presented in a true and faithful manner by the strong company engaged to interpret the characters. The usual matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Keith's Theatre—People who want to laugh go to Keith's without inquiring who is appearing there, nowadays, as so many new acts have been offered this season that have "made good." For the week commencing Nov. 30 the special feature of the program is to be a drill by the Hoosier Zouaves, who perform intricate maneuvers, and conclude with an exhibition of wall scaling. The surrounding show includes Hal Davis and Inez Macaulay, two capital players, in the mirth-provoking sketch, "The Unexpected." Everhart, a marvelous hoop juggler, who has just returned from Europe; Raymond and Caverly, German dialect comedians, generally regarded as the "legitimate successors" of Rogers brothers in the varieties; the Harwell quintet, in the pleasing singing sketch, "The Fire Chief;" Paul Stevens, a remarkable one-legged acrobat, and Lizzie Wilson, a newcomer, who is said to be exceptionally clever. Cole and Johnson will hold over, making a change of their selections, and all the pictures in the biograph will be new. For the week commencing Dec. 7, the much talked about Vassar girls are announced to appear.

Even the professional critic would be hard pressed to name a story of its own genre more delightful than Ruth McEnery Stuart's daintily told narrative of the fortunes that befell "George Washington Jones." (Henry Altemus Company, Philadelphia. Decorated cloth, illustrated, $1.00.) This charming tale of "A Christmas gift that went a begging"—a very attractive book typographically—is written in a delicately artistic style which is singularly appropriate to the deft mingling of humor and pathos that provokes a feeling of exquisite tenderness in the reader, making a smile wait on a tear. This was the rare and precious quality that made the appeal of the Christmas books by Charles Dickens irresistible, and it is not hazardous to predict that the kindly little volume now under consideration will be treasured for many years and be re-printed in edition after edition for a long time to come. Christmas gifts do not usually go as begging, but there was good reason why the one devised by George Washington Jones should find eager acceptance. He was little and poor and black; he had no relation and could hang up no Christmas stocking. Yet he boasted of going after a Christmas gift better than gold or diamonds, and secretly dreamed of gaining a beautiful young mistress by the simple process of offering himself as a Christmas gift to her. Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart is at her best in this story, which is sympathetically illustrated from drawings by Potthast.

Financial.

It is generally believed that a reaction in business will not last very long, and that a revival will be discounted in the stock market long before it comes. It is pointed out that the decline in security prices began one year before there was any sign of a depression in the steel trades, the first to feel the reaction. Some shrewd traders believe that very little money can be made from now on the bear side, and the market is now ready to discount a probable betterment of conditions next summer. Good stocks now yield from 5 to 7 per cent. on the investment; a yield which is much higher than the average for a period of years. People who desire to make profitable investments should not lose the present opportunity to pick up the best dividend stocks. Speculatively, the market is a purchase on all recessions.—Curtis and Sederquist.

Funerals.

There seems to exist in the minds of many persons a morbid curiosity to look upon the face of the dead. We wonder at this. Who would not prefer rather to be remembered when the light of life, joy and love illuminates the countenance. After the spirit has departed we can only feel a shock, as we gaze upon features inanimate that can know us no more in this world.

When family sensitiveness does not permit their dead to be seen publicly let us respect their feelings and have no word of censure for them. C.

Cliffin Guard Reunion.

Forty members of the Cliffin Guard Veteran Association met in annual reunion at the United States Hotel last Friday evening. At the business session which preceded dinner the following named were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Captain Walter E. Lombard; vice presidents, George S. Parker and Captain A. C. Walworth; secretary, Lieutenant Colonel (retired) Robert B. Edes; treasurer, Edward I. Leland. After dinner speeches were made by several of the officers and guests, among whom were Captain A. C. Warren, Hon. Henry E. Cobb, Judge J. C. Kennedy and Captain E. E. Springer of Company C, Fifth Infantry.

Children's Theatre.

The new play and added specialties brought a crowded house to this theatre last Saturday. Without exception every number on the program was a credit to the management. Evelyn Morrill and Carolyn Dill as Jack and the Mother respectively in the play were exceptionally good. Baby Helena Hipwell in her recitation and Mrs. Curtis G. Morse in her child impersonations won deserved and hearty applause.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Mrs. Pollard on Bowdoin street. Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles gives a recital of Scotch songs.

—A union service was held at the Episcopal church on Thanksgiving day. Rev. Mr. Twombly the rector, delivered the sermon. There was a good attendance.

—Miss Minnie Hyde, who was injured by a fall when getting on an electric near the waiting station on Walnut street and taken to the hospital, has returned home.

—Over two hundred watches and clocks have been cleaned or repaired at Woodworth Bros., since Sept. 1st. Out of this number not one has been reported to be in any way unsatisfactory.

—While responding to the alarm of fire from box 65 last Sunday evening, for a small blaze in the house of William B. Draper, 166 Lincoln street, the horses attached to Engine 3 pulled out the pin which held the pole to the engine and ran away. The accident occurred opposite the Hyde house on Centre street. The driver, P. E. Ellis, dropped the reins and the engine swerving to the side of the street, struck a tree and Ellis was thrown to the ground. His injuries were not serious. The horses were captured at the Upper Falls.

—Accessibility, home-like surroundings, delightful restaurant, and moderate rates are features of the Hotel Empire, New York.

—Travellers can reach any point between Newton and Worcester in less time and much lower fare by using the cars of the Boston and Worcester Trolley Air Line. Excellent service cars well heated and ventilated.

Police Paragraphs.

—Frank C. Hyde was ordered by Judge Kennedy last Wednesday to contribute $5 a week towards the support of his wife and child.

Boy Drowned.

—Joseph McKenzie, a boy of ten, and an inmate of the St. John's Industrial school at Newton Highlands, met his death by drowning yesterday afternoon in the Charles river at the foot of the broad slope leading from the school grounds near the Kenrick bridge. The lad with his two brothers, were amusing themselves by running down the steep embankment and sliding out upon the ice which was too thin to bear their weight. Joseph sank after a struggle but the other boys managed to reach the shore in a benumbed condition. The efforts of the employees of the school to save the boy were unavailing and the police were notified. A squad of seven men under Sergt. John Purcell hurried to the scene and securing boats dragged the river for several hours. The body was recovered some 30 feet from where it sank and it was removed to the Newton hospital morgue. McKenzie has been an inmate of the school for several months and his only known relative beside his brothers is an aunt residing in Roxbury.

Y. M. C. A.

—On Monday, Nov. 30, Joe Lorrain, the popular entertainer, will give a program of songs, comic imitations and music. Any man is invited to come. The fun begins at 8 p. m. Come and bring your friends.

—Mrs. Emilie Grant-Wilkinson, organist at Tremont Temple, and recently of Berlin, Germany, will receive pupils on the piano and organ at her residence, 35 Jewett street, Newton.

NOT IN THE BIBLE.

Quotations Popularly Attributed to the Good Book.

"There are a number of sentences not in the Bible which everybody thinks are there," said a clergyman. "The chief of these sentences is, 'He tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.' You would search the Bible pretty thoroughly before you would find that sentence in it. Where you would find it would be in Sterne's 'Sentimental Journey.'"

"Sterne gets a good deal of praise for the origination of this sentence, but it was originated, as a matter of fact, before he was born. In a collection of French proverbs published in 1604 we find, 'Dieu mesure le vent a la brebis tondue.' That confutes Sterne of plagiarism."

"In the midst of life we are in death." Everybody thinks that is in the Bible. It isn't, though. It is in the burial service.

"That he who runs may read." This is another sentence supposed, wrongly, to be Biblical. It is not Biblical, though the Bible has something very like it—namely, 'That he may run that readeth.'"

"Prone to sin as the sparks fly upward." The Bible nowhere contains those words. "A nation shall be born in a day." The nearest thing to that in the Good Book is, 'Shall a nation be born at once?'"

South America in 1000 B. C.

The greater the number of the succeeding phases of civilization the more even must be the average length of each and thus resemble the general length of human periods. It is to be seen that the two central European periods, those of Hallstadt and of La Tene, together embrace about a thousand years, an average of 500 for each. The cultured periods of Egypt may be even longer.

The development of Peruvian civilization, accepting on the average five successive periods, would result in a stratification of cultures representing between 2,000 and 3,000 years. About the year 1000 B. C., at the time when Solomon built his temple, the early Americans in Peru reared their mighty structures to the glory of a creator god. Civilization in America would beyond all doubt have worked itself up to a high plane at some time and might have accomplished alone a peculiar but certainly brilliant development without the intervention of European civilization.—Professor Max Uhle in Harper's Magazine.

Effect of Rain Upon Animals.

"The effects of a rainy day upon animals of a zoo," said a keeper the other day. "are as interesting to watch as anything I know in connection with a collection of beasts. Now, that big wolf over there just revels in a rainy day and skips about as gay as you please. All the wolves are the same. Rain cheers them up. But the lions are different. They fret and fume and growl and snarl unless you give them an extra allowance of meat or a big pan of warm milk. Then they will sleep, but a rainy day seems to get on the nerves of a lion or any of the cat family. Snakes are kept in just a certain temperature all the time, and you would think that the damp air would never reach them. Perhaps it doesn't, but I have always noticed that all the reptiles are active and cheerful, if a reptile can be said to be cheerful, when it rains."—Tit-Bits.

He Had a Daughter.

"You have a daughter, have you not, sir?" said a minister to an old gentleman with whom he had formed a casual acquaintance as a fellow passenger. The old gentleman essayed to answer, but the question had strangely affected him.

"I beg your pardon," said the minister. "If I have thoughtlessly awakened in your mind recollections of a painful nature. The world is full of sorrow, sir, and perhaps my question recalls to your memory a fair, beautiful girl whose blossoming young life had withered in its bloom. Am I right, sir?"

"No, not exactly," replied the old gentleman sadly. "I have five unmarried daughters, minister, and the youngest of the lot is twenty-eight years old."

The Teacher's Fault.

Teacher—Why, Freddy, how did you get those black and blue welts on your arm?

Scholar—Them's your fault, teacher.

Teacher—My fault? What do you mean?

Scholar (sobbing reminiscently)—Why, you told me it was a poor rule that didn't work both ways. So when I went home I took pa's new two foot rule that doubles up on a hinge and bent it back till it worked both ways, and then pa said I'd broken the joints, and he went and got his razor strap.

Having a Hard Time.

"Here I've been running for years," said the hall clock, "and I haven't moved an inch. I wouldn't mind that so much, but every evening about 8:30 the young lady of the family turns me back because she says I'm too fast, and then in the morning the old man comes along and grumbles because I'm too slow."

Fancy Work.

"Does your wife do much fancy work?" "Fancy work? She won't even let a porous plaster come into the house without crocheting a red border round it and running a yellow ribbon through the holes."

A Pampered Ambition.

"That boy says his only ambition is to make a living without working." "What are his parents going to do for him?" "Make a politician out of him."—Detroit Free Press.
